Not really, but... I don't blame you for this one. I should have worked and added on more stuff. 😊

So, new and unwritten info is that this nation is an autonomous place of Valentine Z, but it's controlled by Clarissa, some parts of it.

Given they only border one country on land, and (more importantly) that border isn't really developed and thus it easily defensible, their navy is much more powerful than their army.

I have learned that some forms of aircrafts, as well as future plans for it, are present. The Army and Navy ranks are already there in full detail - which I like that for the Army, they have a Staff Captain, because... I personally never heard it before, so it's new to me!

For the Air Force, I suppose that they are yet to make one, given the timeframe that NGR is in, and the relatively new nature of the aircraft technology. So, they lack an Air Force, but the Navy does have a few birds with them, so... that's good enough!

Hell Destroyer "Snark" was originally going to be fitted with a strategy, logistics and personality AI unit but the idea was later dropped due to the fact that the Leviathan AI is already more than enough for the fleet. Another AI was planned afterwards though that plan was swiftly cut by the Hell Destroyer's disappearance.

The fact that they have misdirected people of the discovery and true nature of Magic, Thaum, if you will... everything about that presentation is completely faked and staged to hide the true nature. Which... I would say, is actually sensible, because if people know about the true nature of this magic, or "magic is science we just don't understand yet", there will be spies, informers, and any other nasties that will be peeking and writing every single detail down to get it for themselves...

They've spreaded the disease of soviet communism through all North America... And also in their universe there are many new countries, probably that's due to their intervencionism in some independence processes... Anyway, nice congress building.

Neo-Manila has several landmarks, such as a memorial to those who died in the Second and Third Pacific Wars, a museum dedicated to the several revolutions the Philippines has gone through, a high-tech commercial district (showing that the authoritarian socialist government has some state capitalism), an urban park dedicated to the first Philippine revolution against Spain, and a consulate for the country of Bruke.

There was never really any strong pro-nuclear sentiment in Hatsunia. The decision to develop a stockpile in the first place was just barely ratified, and the first round of nuclear testing performed within Hatsunese borders sparked a slew of protests and controversies. Having since signed several treaties aimed at halting the proliferation of nuclear weapons, their arsenal remains present (though in a reduced, largely submarine-based form).
