Doing AAN because AN didn't bother to write an action

Pyramid schemes typically result in corporal punishment, although the UGC authorities tend to use their political and financial clout to stay above the law

Using a flamethrower to burn the grass at a golf course located in the desert, in the name of water conservation

@AN; "Waving dual machetes around in public in people's faces while performing acrobatic stunts."

Would constitute in charges for possession of a high-grade militaristic weapon and arson, which would be a maximum sentence of 22 years in prison.

Using a flamethrower to burn YN's snowcaps at the top of the mountains in the effort of increasing YN's water supply, but inadvertently causing a massive wildfire in the process.

NS stats (civil rights/economy/political freedoms) mostly NOT canon. There are some civil rights and liberties and political freedoms in Vertillia but the government is mostly authoritarian, especially when it comes to immigration, climate change, crime, and punishment.

More info coming soon!

Considering that most forests in Laka belong to The Crown, one would be incredibly stupid to purposely damage the trees growing there (originally this was a measure meant to provide the Royal Navy with trees for their ships but now it's more of ecological stuff). Depending on the damage inflicted, the perpetrator could be in for several life sentences or even several death penalties (they'll literally hand them several times, it's stupid but it's that way)

Forced servitude for one year.

Additionally, the person doing this will be constantly monitored by Songateri Secret Service.

As long as it has no ammunition, it is acceptable to be used in a safe manner. If armed, you could face corporal punishment max. Minimum would be driving a vehicle armed with ammunition. Despite it mandatory to own a gun, a tank is more mini-bomb cannon.

Rioting and breaking a window of the Leader's house.

as ashotu does not exist in buherin lore, your military weapons don't either. as such, doing so is not a crime
however, homicide is generally frowned upon in buhers, and will likely get you put in a mental asylum (the closest we have to prisons because i abolished them for some reason)
