"I can't say that I know the Empress well, but I think I can speak for a lot of people when I say that she is undoubtedly one of the friendliest and most humble characters you'll have the chance to meet. I've always been particularly weary of royalty as there tends to be a noticeable societal disconnect, but this doesn't exist with her. I also find her personal motto to be words that speak an exceptional truth. Personal hygiene? Incredibly important, and you won't get an argument out of me. Healthy diet? Absolutely...to hell with carbs right? And following the laws of war? Unquestionably paramount regardless of the situation. And so all things considered, the Empress is a-okay in my book, and I hope that her optimism continues to drive her ambition for many years to come."

Le Patron sat on a wheelchair in his office as a broken man. Ever since that mental breakdown; his leg was paralyzed and his body couldn't even function properly. He lived in resignation and defeat as well as regret of the Futurist Revolution. Looking outside of the window made him lose his soul day by day as the chaos in Patagonia continues by his hand and he is convinced that there's nothing to stop the Futurist Revolution - no, not even himself could do it. Better to accelerate towards the end than to live in pain.

"This project against nihilism and fascism... It is useless, Kotera. We are accelerating towards a neoliberal world - capitalism with a human face. The human face of false social progress and political freedom where we are blinded by the illusion of choosing more than one product as well electing between two corporate plants. It's better to accelerate capitalism until it's late-stage decay or... just accept the world for what it is. Doesn't take a cuck who screams about black women representation in media to know that we're accelerating towards the end."

"Huh, perhaps Konrad and I are not so different as I don't believe it to be. We carry out the most violent acts against humanity in a way to further our agendas and influence others to join our ranks; we both especially murder countless innocents just to get the message across with the countries of the world that we are a legitimate threat to the order of things. But...there is one major difference between Konrad and I—for Konrad, he is now a broken, sickly, dying man bound forever to a wheelchair—and me? Well, I'm living healthy thanks to my constant sanitation and top-notch hygiene and the use of effective masks; that way I can still kill hundreds, no thousands, wait no, maybe hundred THOUSANDS, no even better, MILLIONS of those Chinese. Maybe I can hijack support for his Futurist Revolution as he did in the past...interesting prospects to have a million more people kill a hundred million Hanzu."
