Cohabitation with a member of the opposite sex.

Occupied territories formed from the former US states of the New England region, once ruled by incels, but now liberated from that fascist, misogynistic regime.

While it is extremely rare in the wake of the Queen's efforts to liberalize sections of the criminal code, attempting to kill something as sacred as a fairy or forest fox amounts to high treason and sacrilege and thus warrants public execution or even burning at the stake.

No punishment. Somebody will get concerned and try to comfort you.

Intentionally saying of wanting to bring back the Fauconist regime to Dovenisa and conquer BN. (Fauconist is an abbreviation of the Fauconist Union of Dovenisa, an fascist party. It is an huge part of national Dovenisan trauma, read the factbook about the history of Dovenisa and Autocria for more info.)

No penalties, officially at least. Social censure for worrying about internal politics in a sovereign nation and fascist sympathies.

Clerical political agitation.

Note: Narland was very slow at posting a response. It might have been an Internet buffer problem. Here is the catch up.

Not illegal, but certainly considered Unnarlandish. The can-do attitude is part of culture. To use defeatist language is considered a tragic character flaw. It is a sign of immaturity, indolence, or brain damage. In stories, media, and popular entertainment is usually a sign of villainy.

Not necessarily a crime in Narland, but certainly of dubious worth, as Narland polity is inherently hostile to all forms of authoritarianism including Fascism. It would be considered a waste of breath or of paper. It would be treated as a curiosity of a failing mind (or indicative of a potentially dangerous individual).

Clerical political agitation.

Not a crime. Clergy are considered the moral conscience of the state. They are expected to speak loudly, and act boldly when the state falls into unconscionable error. But if the clergy are agitating for that which is unconscionable, they are derided as underclerical, hypocrites, or worse, heretics. Should an element of clergy persist with agitating for the unconscionable, they are usually defrocked and encouraged to find a more fitting occupation such as amput sniffer for a deodorant factory.

Historically, death by a variety of methods. Since reunification and national elections, the penalty could be in flux, as there is considerable debate on the extent of freedom of the press.

Emergency services such as police, firefighters, doctors and nurses, are prohibited by law from striking. Failure to comply with this law is punishable by imprisonment from 6 months to 1 year. In addition to a fine equivalent to one month of the average salary for that function.
