No, it was already codified into law as most animals are all citizens, they were considered sentient but a far-right fringe group raised complaints causing it to be brought to court. I removed that part because of the 800 character limit.

I assume you're talking about American right-wing libertarianism here? It's fair to dislike their politics, but I don't know if they have enough real political clout to require an "anti-libertarian" response lol

Still, glad to hear your nation has a rigid age of consent
