The punishment would be factored by a lot of different things, including the weapon being used, intent to use the weapon, the success of the robbery, and the items stolen. Regardless, it's a felony. Minimum of 1 year in prison, parole is oft reliant on other factors of the robbery.

Depending on the shire death penalty ranging from hanging on a short rope (strangling rather than breaking the neck) in the most liberal ones to blood eagles in the opposite side of the spectrum. The sole country in the Empire which has a technical ban on death penalties simply extradites such criminals to the Queensdom once they're convicted,

Everything Dirty Harry does in the movie? (A lot of police brutality- but all for a good cause!)

Not a crime, but if you beat up the wrong guy you might face a disciplinary panel. If it catches the public's attention and the government needs to save face.

Chased off the field in question by any security in the area, and maybe later arrested by local police (or perhaps CP officers) for public indecency and causing a major disruption. This may be followed with a fine of up to 5000CR and prison time of up to 8 months.

The other tribes telling the Deep Krakens that doing it the third time in a week is just being annoying.

Hoarding medical supplies for personal profit.

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. Violently raided by a gang set up by someone who needed the supplies. This will result in you being cleaned out of all of your stock, and if you're too weak, perhaps you yourself getting dismantled for parts!

Watering down fuel so it's only half as energetic as it's supposed to be, while charging full price.
