Any moron with an army and a pocketful of credits can stumble there way into a position of power, but it takes a man like Zovban to keep it. This perfect, glorified image of a leader who is a dauntless captain and heroic as a protagonist has gone through the Ministry of Truth one too many times. Where can I read about him from the perspective of his enemies?"

"Ahh, so let us move onto the next person. That's right, it's the man who is nicknamed after Stalin. This... idiocy. He's a King in a socialist nation, this noble premise in a... festering hellscape. He's the sort of man I'd usually respect. I doubt he has any desire to expand his realm past Africa, and he can stay there as far as I'm concerned. He understands the necessity of order, but the issue I find is that he's too open to allowing deviant interests to undermine his rule. Not to mention he unified an entire continent of disparate cultures in such a patchwork way, before claiming the 'crown' of the nation... How laughable. His false crown is only the guise through which he exploits the people he supposedly allows to be 'free' through his socialist grip. Take it from somebody who was nearly killed at the hands of Communists - he cannot be trusted."

South Reinkalistan is a massive, ecologically-diverse nation notable for its roving student militias and widespread hatred for the elderly. In the midst of a room-temperature cultural revolution that's lost its momentum, the Party carefully plans its next move. As the brittle bones of fragile empires begin to crack beneath their own weight, history's symphony reaches crescendo pitch. The future is all but certain.

are still astonishing. From a kid who plays football on the street to one of Stanier's greatest players, and then he became the Attorney General and the Minister of Internal Affairs? The conquests of this man are staggering! At this rate, he'll coup Stanier and restore the Roman Empire while winning the world cup single-handedly! I must say, he is an impressive man.

Now, on to his policies. Being an attorney general, I did not expect him to do much for his nation but no. Even there, he managed to prevent several laws preventing the collapse of the legal system and easing the massive bureaucracy on the people of Stanier. Hm, maybe it would be good for the world for him to restore the empire. Overall, while we may have our differences, I like him. I hope him the best of luck in his future endeavours

As much as it pleases me to see a leader such as Alexander Smith call out Skyhooked for what it is, a land of parasites and scum and not tolerating their 'lifestyle' it is hardly likely we will ever bond over mutual disdain for Skyhookedean "culture" if you could qualify it as that. Alexander has confirmed his distaste many times for my colleagues and my method for achieving progress by whatever means necessary to greater myself and my people. I find this understandable, given he's a surface dweller, his kind tend to be too soft and weak to get their hands dirty in order to quicken their dreams of a brighter future. Two different societies, two different moral codes, one of which is far more effective than the other but I digress, if Smith wants to take the safe route that is fine with me, provided he leaves Rapture alone and we will do the same with him. I bid him farewell as there is much work to be done.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"He's certainly loud, isn't he? Honestly, I'm not sure what to say here. He just... floats around, plundering things. Why? What ultimate purpose does his armada even serve? Does it serve any purpose whatsoever? Far more questions than answers with this one. And while I like questions, in principle, they tend to annoy me after a while. Ah well, I'm sure he's a marvelous chap beneath all that scarring, beard fluff and liver cirrhosis. We should have tea sometime! Why do I get the feeling he'd want his with rum?"

" An old decrypted sea-rat. He could probably pass off as someone's great-grandfather if it weren't for the fact that he looks like he has never stepped off a boat or committed more than 2 good deeds in his entire life. And that unruly bread, Mon Dieu! Anyhow, how he and his contingent of pirates still remain prosperous in their criminal actions and devotion to entirely sail ships, as opposed to steam and electrical ones is a mystery to me. But anyhow, he is a broken unclean unwanted relic from a time of sail long past. Perhaps his successor will be more of a modernizing and lawful force than this old pirate will ever be." -Matthieu XV

" A very smart and successful man I see. Some would say to smart, but he has worked well to get to his point of superiority and I can commend him for that. But, he is most definitely mad, no sane man would ever completely abandon most ethics for their work, which he has done. Though the society he has built around this "aura research" and the sciences is a most impressive one, and he seems to be a friendly man, so perhaps I will find a way to speak with him someday." -Matthieu XV

Welcome to The Alpes a Septentrionali Imperium, a nation where I brutalize and adapt Latin and French History to my needs to get my Ultraroyalist Absolutist

French Monarchy with a vaguely French-sounding fictional royal family to work.

Don't ask about the flag, it has something to do with RMB RP that I'm involved with.

"Oh, oh, oh! I was a pirate too! Hell, I actually have a redbear, unlike this old fuck. Never mind my immortality and actual age though. Totally young and fresh! Still, I should've gotten the title Redbeard, but my world already had a famous pirate with that name. So, I was stuck with the gay-ass name 'Girlybeard'. They were SO mean about it! WAAAAAAAAAAH! WAAAAAAAAAAH! WAAAAAAAAAAH!

Eh, I just took the name in heart.

Honestly though, none of the pirates really had that classic pirate aesthetic I was going for. The Broken Coast were more like Vikings, and Port Maw was...well more like normal raiders who happen to use boats. So, I brought back the aesthetic and promised the pirates the loot of their leaders' chests, ship democracy, and privateer contracts if they served the RCAS. I also simultaneously got the victims of their raids to work with me by prohibiting the new 'privateers' from raiding RCAS controlled settlements. It's a win-win, hehe! I get to spread the RCAS and gain naval supremacy. The raided people get both freedom and security. And, the pirates get to live their lives freely as a Pirate Republic, looting in the name of the Neo-Confederacy. Of course, it got awkward when I finally reunited America, but by that point, the RCAS could afford giving those privateers veteran's benefits. They just got assimilated into the Navy.

Oh, that guy? I don't know. He's a pirate. Yaarrgggh! I like pirate aesthetics, so I can't help but like the guy. But seriously though, he's delusional as fuck. Trying to fight against a modern navy with 17th century technology. Yeah, when I LARPed as pirate, I at least used submarines and small boats to basically give navies the wolfpack treatment. I think he just fell underwater during that battle and got so much brain damage that he's in a permanent corra. Honestly, that isn't too different to how I was when I initially achieved godhood. I mean, I was aware that the world I was in was a fantasy, but I created it myself and was trapped in it. That or he actually managed to pull it off. I'm leaning towards the former."

"Holy crap, that's Tsar Nicholas the II! Damn it! I need to finish what the Soviets start- Huh? Oh, he's the King-Emperor of...Alpes a Septentrionalis? The hell is that? An alpine kingdom or something? Oh, it's...France. Eh, I guess the French and Russians always were close. Entente and all. And, European monarchies are so inbred that they end up looking all the same anyways. Wonder why they're using the Tricolor if they're a traditionalist monarchist regime and Alpeian culture never had the Republican element that France had. Guess it's the same reason why this guy looks like Nicholas the II."

Completed, sorry for that.

☐ No, it is not the Confederate States of America. No, it's not the South either. SU stands for 'States and Unions'. The right acronym is RCAS. Please read the Factbook. ☐ ☐
