AAN bc AN didn't provide anything.

Depending on their social status and intent, punishment can be a scolding (if a newcomer, child, or non-social adult, or if they are simply ignorant to their words's meaning), a short-term prison sentence (if a well-known older teen or adult in their community), a medium term prison sentence (if they have any political power), or a long-term prison sentence in extreme cases where their words threatened or, even semi-indirectly, caused non-verbal harm. It's also customary to do community service for half the prison sentence to double the prison sentence, depending on length. This usually consists of helping neighbors with livestock or helping with the local scolding punishments for at least an hour per day, though most settlements encourage 4+ hours per day.

Doing this again due to lack of another crime... Life in jail. Shooting a burglar/robber is generally not punished, killing a shoplifter/pickpocket is basically murder. If the victim is a kid, you will always get life in jail without parole.

Genocide?

Crime Against Humanity is not under our jurisdiction, however it can be charged with multiple Degree I murder.
Likely Capital Punishment and confiscation of all private possessions, practically will be extradited to international court for further CAH Trials.

Depends on how bad it was / what means you used to do it (did you just sit down on the road? or did you use concrete blocks and sandbags to stop traffic?). Outside of the fact the driver is legally allowed to forcibly remove you from the road (mind you, also applies to blocking the sidewalk, it's an infringement on the right to freedom of movement), even if that results in injury, you could land a substantial fine, potentially in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. You could also be held accountable for any injuries as a result of your blockade, or if an emergency service is obstructed (firefighters, ambulances, etc.)

So yeah... don't do it, you can't afford to do it.

Damaging a priceless work of art.

AAN: A fine of 1 thousand to 10 million CSD depending on the wealth of the person, and having to pay for any damages done.

AN: Assuming you did so by doing environmental damage, you'd expect to be charged with Environmental Destruction which carries a sentence of up to 25 years in jail, a fine of upwards of 1 billion dollars, and being fired from your job, very likely as a CEO.

Doing several first-degree murders you'd find in a Terrifier Movie?

You'd probably be shot by a lawman, but anyways you would likely be sentenced to a very long time in prison (60 or so years), or maybe the death sentence if your unlucky.

Depends... what did you do with it? If you still have the animals you're going to be forced to give them back AND to pay a fine. Did you milk them? You're also paying a fine proportional to the money you made with the milk plus giving what you made to the original owner. Did you kill them? Same case, but the fine is even higher.

Medium-term jail if no harm was caused to the herder or livestock, long-term if harm was caused.

The perpetrator's family is also expected to give the victim any offspring from the perpetrator's livestock for the next three years, or to pay for victim's livestock's food if the perpetrator has no livestock; this expectation stems from the old punishment, and is no longer legally enforced, but most families still do it since the victim is usually part of their community.

That's piracy. If the pirates survive the effort to stop them with armed force, they will be imprisoned and most of their taxable belongings (such as land, a personal vehicle, individual weapons, a house) seized by the Judicial Police. The minimum sentence is 5 years, but if they have killed or harmed anyone, it will be escalated up to life imprisonment.

Possession or trade in antihuman technological artifacts (such as bioweapons, certain kinds of advanced computer programs, inessential cybernetic implants, et cetera).
