Just like many post-soviet countries, AN went through quite the lot of unrest. One of their riots was about people holding bread in their hands to protest increasing prices.

Brazil can boast that it has eradicated homophobia nearly entirely through thorough education and a general state-sanctioned breaking of "traditional" (read, 1950s American) gender roles in their society.

In 1949 there was an anti-Soviet uprising in Waisnor which got suppressed and the ASSR got upgraded into a SSR. The anti-Soviet uprising would serve as the myth for there being a massive Waisnor independence movement.

Firearm ownership is required in Patagonia, and they even let their citizens own RPGs. This is the same nation that holds weekly events similar to the Purge and whose population I have no doubt is on some kind of controlled substance 99% percent of the day.

The fact that everyone hasn't died out in the past two seconds astonishes me.

The diarcesian form of government has been firstly codified in 863, which would make it one of the longest standing national systems of government in the world. It is also a quite complex, rather exquisite, form of monarchy for a present day nation, with a monarch, triarchs, heptarchs and nonarchs.

Waisnor's Prime Minister is only elected for a 2-year term, which is quite short compared to most RL nations! Not saying it's a bad thing, just something that stuck out as interesting.

The people of Waisnor are really quite the Television-nauts; they have registered not only foreign shows which they have broadcasted and enjoyed since the Fall of the Iron Curtain, but they've also taken to make animated shows inspired by Western superheroes and many other genres.

AN: The United States of America and the United Kingdom are the Drogonian Defense Force's greatest foreign importers when it comes to military vehicles and hardware, with Germany contributing to a lesser extent. The place of origins of their small arms are a bit more varied however.

Their nation name comes from a tribute to their national animal (or something of similar standing), the Drongo. Internet searches show me that the Drongo is a group of birds.

And that it's an Australian slang for 'Moron'.

The Saucer Peoples came to the Earth of the nation's continuity thanks to a one-way portal from their home universe. This is surprising, as I would think such a group would exercise more caution regarding a one-way portal to who-knows-where-or-when, but these folks were like 'YOL0000000000000000'

I'd bring up the big government brawl, but I think I used that one a while back, so I'm going to bring up that their culture is known for their paintings, sculptures, television shows, movies... and carved wooden boxes. Which seems oddly specific. What do people do with them? Are they purely decorative, or do people keep their playing cards in them or something? So many questions.
