"Well now. A man after my own heart, this one. Having traveled far, and accomplished much... a free spirit. A man practically tied to adventure, and to the art of war, by the very fiber of his being. He is a warrior, plain and simple. And if his tales are to be believed, among the most prominent warriors I have ever had the pleasure to encounter. His exploits are the stuff of legend, and I've no doubts that legends will be spun of them - for that is the way of things. He rules naught, but what care do I have for such petty things? He fights. He leads. He conquers. All that remains is an invitation - for to cross blades with one so storied would be a welcome pleasure indeed."

standing in front of him, almost as if he wanted to ask him something, or perhaps simply wanted to talk to him. Either way, he is going to get the conversation that Erik wants. "This'll actually be rather pleasant, I think," Valentijn thought to himself. Reading and combing through the dossier that he got hold of regarding Erik, he read one of his quotes: I would trust a ground soldier who has on the field experience better then a general who has not left his office in years. "Heh, you are in luck, my friend!" Valentijn would boom out his voice towards the man standing beside him, but with a very obvious height difference, "As you can tell, I am all about the field! Hell, you can ask anyone around me, including both the Valentians and the other people, that I am that sort of person who always charges into the field first! I mean, sure it is a little risky, but you know I can do this just because. Ahh, anyway, I think you and I will get along just fine. Your policies and politics don't seem to be too conflicted with mine, if at all. A military man, I like that. Granted, I have a feeling that you will be a little against the idea of pacifism, but I am also a strong believer of a military that is strong enough to hold off invasions. We are that sort of people who talks quietly and carries a knife behind for good measure, if you know what I mean!" With his opinion finished, he waved the man farewell and carefully walked around him, ensuring that he keep his "Number of people I have stepped on today by accident" to zero. "Well, see you around!" he said.

We find Valentijn's method of governing rather common, and inefficient, as it is limited by moral preferences rather objective concerns. However, there is one aspect of their personality which we value. Valentijn has managed to live with extreme height and with their physical form posing a danger to others for an extended period of time. This would make Valentijn an ideal subject for experiments in virtual the humanoid brain architecture, were they living within Mainframe territory.

An alternate history version of China in which the alliance between the Kuomintang and the Communist Party never broke down, eventually resulting in a federalized, democratic China. Though one of the world's strongest economies and an emerging superpower, China continues to suffer from high rates of income inequality, an overreaching and sometimes corrupt government, and cultural issues that continue to persist despite the efforts of many reformers over the decades. Most factbooks are still an active WIP.

Yeesh, and I thought an intelligent Dominioan was an oxymoron as is. This guy is a whole boatload of dumb decisions. He's an emperor, yet he wishes for Communism. Look, I get it, most autocrats want their own special title and special life because they need to compensate for something. But you... why would you want a system that actively advocates for the death of the aristocracy and nobility, your people? It's like if I established Socialism while callin' my self the 'CEO of America'. Alright, sh-... crapping on his advocacy of Communism aside, he just seems to be a tinpot dictator who gained way too much power. He doesn't care about his nation nor his people, else he wouldn't let either of them get to such a state. Kabzeel, meaning "God's Gathering" in Hebrew, is a federal, dominant-party, socialist(non-marxist)constitutional monarchy with a rich Jewish heritage dating back to its creation in 845 CE. Today, it spans almost the entirety of Eastern Europe and is the largest predominately Jewish and female-led state in the world as it follows the doctrine of "Royal Socialism", a paternalistic conservative ideology with an emphasis on socialization, social ownership, and conservative feminism. Its relationship with Israel is noticeably rocky, but this is due to the ongoing complications between Kabzeelian and Israeli Zionism.
