I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Break time from Celldweller to listen to my new discovery of the day.

Well, more like my new discovery that I needed to check out in the first place because I kept seeing them mentioned before.

Now I have to wonder why all these noise rock/noise pop bands seem to have such short albums....
