Dedassified information suggests that a military operation aimed with the pacification of an area in heavy civil unrest ended with seven casualties and ended in failure.

"Let's a good look at ~~Comisar~~ Grand Marshal Arnold yes?

He began his career aboard the Mont-Blanc Corvette GSS Whitebergh a ship specialized for anti-piracy and in 2 years time would become commanding officer of the ship until it would be destroyed acting on its function at Elgrot and for his bravery there he would be further promoted to the artillery ship GSS Bertin which under his command would gain more battle honors then it had ever seen prior to his command which to be fair it probably helped that an opportunity provided itself in the Second Human-Drule War. There aren't many chances to earn honors during peacetime.

From there he would gain command of an entire formation and it was more than likely success after success after that until Grand Admiral became his.

Impressive."

They're apparently Sweden on holmism or whatever.

At the request of my inner consciousness, an actual analysis of AAN:

Okay, so, let's take a look at the "World After the War" factbook, when the War was still in its babyshit phase, the amount of Humans was about 124 billion people, most of them lived on earth, which hosted 29 billion, that's pretty impressive concerning the overpopulation problems our little rock has, and uhh, many nations above the equator are a wasteland equal to Fallout but turned up to thirty-thousand, not fun stuff.

The Republic Sic! Party itself is not violent, but it has been scrutinized for being supportive of republican militant movements in its early history and failure to explicitly condemn acts of violence by supporters.

I learned, respectively, that people on the moon developed a constructed language (Lunar) though I have no info over that; that there is an artificial ring around the Moon made presumably by space garbage; and that there is pretty much no ecosystem in the moon other than dolphins and apes.

This whole timeline got me confused. If Riebeck is born in 1959 then why is she 39 years old in 2021 as Canadian Governor General? Also MacMillan is old af to still be serving in any office. But I found out that "Minister of Mongol Affairs" during her time in Apartheid SA is a part of her resume - not a good look.

Konrad Svoboda is an Italian futurist artist with Czech roots. His works were banned in CSSR.

Our nation is Poland, but there was a great Nazbol revolution, which overthrew the PZPR and freed Poland from USSR, in 1993. The Iron Curtain still exists, but it has changed its borders.

Their national anthem is not Jeszeze Polska, and instead is Warsawinka, which I agree fits better with a communist Poland. However, this implies that Poland has had a revolution, as the lyrics are a bit more violent than Jeszeze Polska, which is confirmed by their factbook detailing the Nazbol uprising.

There's this city state called Comerciante which is situated on an artificial island named Ark 12. This artificial island is located off the coast of Ecuador or on the Galápagos Islands. Apparently it was developed in WWII as it was reaching its conclusion as part of a harebrained scheme to build some floating fortresses which would land onto mainland China to launch troops. So yeah pretty cool.

Gandoor's highest legislative body, the Forum, can only hold votes of no confidence in the prime minister every three months if it so desires; should the motion pass, then rather than triggering an election for a new prime minister they will appoint the Head of the Forum to be Prime Minister for the remainder of the Prime Minister's term. Presumably the Head is the occupant of a position similar to a secretary or secretary-general, though it's a red link.

This does beg the question of whether or not the Head can be booted out by a vote of no confidence, as "for the remainder of the Prime Minister's term" seems to imply they'd be entitled to the seat until the next election.

That despite having absolutely no access to the High Seas whatsoever, the Polish Republic has Aircraft Carriers... Which is probably a dumb idea since the cost of keeping them up is a lot heavier than the benefit of their global power projection -which doesn't exist because the farthest the carrier could go at wartime would likely be "only out of its port" before it's sunk by any other power in the Baltic Sea.

So I have learned about their sports culture, with football being the most popular out of the all of them. "Sports offspringing in the Danelaw onslot football, cricket, many styles of rookby, tennis, boxing, badminton, rounders, hocky, billiard, darts, table tennis, bowls, netball, horseracing, houndracing and foxhunting," so seems like they are generally those kind of sports that most Europeans gravitate towards to in terms of demographics. I wonder if they have any motorsports or something to that effect.

Overall, like applying to all of their Factbooks, I do love the generous usage of their own language peppered throughout, though I would be lying if I didn't admit that I have a bit of a difficult time reading as an outsider because some terms are more obscure than others and the meanings and practicality was lost. It's unique, I'll give it that, but it's "Awesome but impractical," even with the Wordbook.
