I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

I'm listening to the calm, peaceful quite life of the ranch/farm with no cows, no cars, no bells ringing, and very well being happy, listening to only natures purest sounds....

I wish it sounded like that out in the country where I live....We live close enough to the highway I can hear it sometimes, along with a train track (The train can be FREAKING LOUD out here, despite the fact it's about a mile to the tracks or so), and being under a flight path. Yeah, nice location, unlucky place to be peaceful.

Maybe you'd need to go up north to like Northern Ontario, or Northern Quebec for peace.

Queen- These Are the Days of Our Lives

I didn't know political protests for Québécois sovereignty are considered peaceful.

Not many people live in Northern Quebec, so a protest up there would be rather unlikely.

Personally, I really do think this song "Destroys me". Something about it always hits me hard. Something about it just has a feeling of despair or something. I definitely don't mind what their style is changing into.

Listening to the same song as my last post.

It doesn't really make me cry. Music rarely does, unless I'm in a bad mood.

And I totally guessed what that sound was right! Woo! Despite the fact I don't play Team Fortress 2 much!
