"Well now, how about that? I have little doubt that she would find me personally to be every bit as much of a reprobate and vagabond as she sees in Mr. Navarro. I should like to stress however that I am not in any way inclined towards reciprocating any presumed animosity. To be clear, I find myself eminently impressed by Mrs. Sleet and her efforts to educate herself and correct a variety of injustices that were affecting the society around her. She saw corruption in the government and even the very church she grew up under, and she has done all in her power to rectify those issues and demonstrated remarkable facility in the doing. She believes hard, but she does not believe unquestioningly. Verily, were she to find herself in another world and time, I daresay that she would be among our most celebrated adherents. Madam Sleet, I salute you. This is a rare instance of me showing genuine respect, but I do believe it deserved." -Prime Archivist Balmothere

Can he really be trusted, I mean he could throw shade at anyone he wants to after a bit of time passes, tweak lore to his own advantage.

I would do that if I was as doubted adoring my upbringing as much as he has been. It's just that bit of scorn you hold to those that wrong you.

But he does it better than Vyke, he scribes teachings of the abyss on his skin and armor.

Balnothere seems like a good guy though, working to his own advantage, but rather good hearted in the end. I feel we are similar in ways but different entirely.

I don't know if he's sympathetic or putting on a front to gain favor, I will always keep my guard up around this guy... sorry if Vyke tries to kill you for that, please only kill him if you have to."

I find this Laura Ortiz woman to be utterly repulsive, a mere skimming of the text laid before me gives me nothing but an impression of someone who holds nothing but contempt for the world before them, another Tamerlane... Even this very document suggest that her soul is twisted, and how can it not be for her people place great importance on their symbol being a spider, is it no surprise then that they would produce someone so venomous? Even the citizens of the blessed Queen of Cities, as rightfully wary of foreigners as they are, would never dream of outright exterminating foreigners, want them gone by force if necessary sure, as happened... but this is sickening and barbaric language. This Ortiz woman is an anathema to anything decent to the world, Queen of Babylon, enemy of all that is righteous, and spawn of evil, my judgment upon you pales in comparison to the judgement that God himself has decided upon. President Harry Thornley

Ok, so now I have to do these opinion pieces... ok. So what we have here is a Byzantine emperor. Not the thing I've expected to talk about. Ok so while you officially became emperor in 1475, you actually did some work in 1462. As a teen you could not control your... base instincts and made many "illegitimate children." I don't know why people care about illegitimacy. If that kid can rule, make them a ruler. But maybe it was considered unthinkable back in the 15th century. You eventually officially became emperor after your father got too delirious to rule, which is understandable. Sick people can't really run things well, which is why I put myself into a computer.

So apparently you were a great reformer, trying to make the Roman Empire a bit of a more modern nation... or at least more modern at the time. You even reformed the way "artillery trains" were designed. Wait... did you actually have trains in your 15th century. Here in ours, I think we didn't had them until the 1800s. Maybe its just different terminology.

Ok, so not long after you became emperor, you got into a war with the Marluks together with Jerusalem. But then during one of the battles against a Marluk general called "Al-Nasir", you got a stray arrow in your neck, and died. I didn't really know that rulers commanding from the frontlines was common in the 15th century. I'm thankful for modern communication technology so I don't have to do that.

"You know, there was a time when I could muster hatred for people like Liam here. I mean, just look at him. Someone who pinches himself at the chance to lead really shouldn't be put in charge. And do I really have to explain why having a drug-ridden drunkard in command is an awful idea? He's obsessed with finding old art or something- look, maybe he's reminiscing about that time he decided to take...seriously? Is perverse photography really a leadership qualification? Now I'm feeling some contempt.

He's committed to a delusion of freedom that I don't even think most free people are insane enough to want. As far as I can tell he's trying to keep four groups in his own country from fighting each other, and that says it all, doesn't it? Pitiful. Absolutely pitiful. I'd be angry if I wasn't so depressed.

...and if I didn't have the same problem...

I'll sort it out. I always do. And when he's condemned the dustbins of history or mocked by future generations for his rampant idiocy, maybe I'll get a chuckle or two out of it. One can only hope."

In this filthy cesspool full of bourgeoisie scumbags whose visage is as ugly as their character and class position, it is truly rare to see a cute and attractive magical Catgirl whose political position is beautiful and as progressive as her "Kawaii" character! And when I came to ask about your political position, you answered them all correctly! You rightfully condemned the circus of the imperialists in liberal "democracy"! You joined the Warsaw Pact, and played a leading role in it, you are our Vanguard against the imperialist and terrorist regime of NATO! I asked if it is correct to establish a socialist dictatorship of the proletariat, you said yes! I asked whether it is correct to have Gulags and Laogai to police the most stubborn of the reactionaries, you said yes! Truly you are the most advanced of all Comrades!

And some people criticize for being "torturous" and "brutal" in your methods, "sadistic", perhaps. Comrade Aozora Chiyumi, I have a wholesome inspirational quote for you, Leon Trotsky said "The dictatorship of the Communist Party is maintained by recourse to every form of violence"! Ignore the reactionary rabble who criticizes you, Comrade! I am also enlightened by your great magical skills and your arsenal of Arcane, this is Communist Magic!

President Harry Thornley

Ok so the person I have to talk about this time is... are you a mutant? Oh no, your just an alien. A pretty ugly one too. But you do look useful for war. How do your weapons work? Oh, you are from a military family. That sounds pretty nice. I've also been in the military. Twice actually. One time as a medic, then again as a general. Wait? You killed 20 serfs out of spite? That seems pretty inefficient. A good military leader wouldn't do things like this out of spite. I for instance, don't let my emotions control me. That would make my army better for the eventual, unavoidable war against those horrid American savages, who destroyed our homes and killed our people. So where were I again... oh yeah. I see you try to rule through fear. Although its a good tactic to gain respect, I think it would lose its effect if you do it too often, because then people will start thinking that you are punishing them arbitrary. You also seem to be a cyborg. Something else that we somewhat have in common. I say somewhat because I am in a computer, which is a bit more then using cybernetics. I see that you force everyone to use cybernetics to create one unifying race. While it may seem to come in handy here, I don't think we need it. Europeans are good enough at working together. The only thing that had brought us apart where yankie nukes. Its a good thing that we were able to also bring them apart with nukes of our own.

"Perhaps you have heard of the philosopher Kant? He spoke greatly of categorical imperatives and--more appropriately to this situation--doing things for their own sake. Categorical Imperatives are best described by looking at examples of divine law that have been put forward by a variety of religions, such as the Ten Commandments and the like. Additionally, when one does a thing for its own sake, the person is motivated by performing the action itself. This can be shown as one who performs charitable acts simply because the doing of such a thing gives them a feeling of fulfillment that cannot be gained from other activities.

"Perhaps you are wondering why I speak of what might seem to you as inane drivel. The reason I bring this up is because in your actions and your beliefs I see a corruption of such concepts so fundamentally thorough as to pass into the realm of stultification. You are cruel just to be cruel. You are violent just to be violent. You exploit for the sake of exploitation and you demand worship because you feel that is what should be demanded. Woe betide those who dare to refuse you, or even disagree with your methods as that constitutes a refusal to accept your whim as sacrosanct. There is no incentive for your people outside of avoiding the fate of those who displease you. There is no initiative. There is no wonder. There is no glory.

"There is only you, and you are so shallow that I cannot even describe you as a puddle. You are that film of moisture that persists on a road after a rain, and is gone within thirty minutes of being exposed to sunlight. You are nought but your surface whims. There is no strategy. There is no learning. There is only hate and rage and evil for nothing more than the sake of being hateful and wrathful and vile. It is stupid. You are stupid. You are worse than an angry drunk. An angry drunk sobers up after a while! An angry drunk doesn't mean to be violent, they are simply dealing with internalized issues that have bubbled up to the fore. You are one of those children who likes to torture small animals because it makes you feel big and strong and capable of agency when in fact you are showing the exact lack thereof.

"There is no conceivable way in which I could possibly respect one such as you. You are not a leader, you are a brigand and a bully who is cruel to others in order to feel big. But you are not big. You are small. You are small and simple and shallow. If I were to meet you, I would show you that yes it is possible for a man to kill a god.

"For you, it would not be difficult." -Prime Archivist Balmothere, somehow losing his smile for the first time in what seems like centuries.

Prince of the Zora, Ralis

"Long time no see, this weird "Seventh Forum" place, am I right? Oh, but how many times have I said that at this point, right? I am on and off here as much as a Goron's mood is! But, I'll not hold myself up on this because, well, that'd get mundane pretty quickly, wouldn't it?

So, who seeks my immense wisdom and intelligence on themselves and their character, eh? (a short, lighthearted chuckle follows) A man; Prime Archivist dare I say, Balmothere? Or would you prefer I call you High Executor? I really don't know, but either way I promise you that I'd mean no offense, I rarely do. So, let me muse on then! Your two titles are actually quite interesting in and of themselves! Prime Archivist? High Executor? They're very colourful, and puts "Prince" or "Regent" or even "Princess-Sovereign" to shame, eh? I don't know really what they're supposed to represent but I think it's safe to say that you are quite the powerful leader in your own realm, one that inhibits multiple different planets? Like, planes right? That must be a lot of responsibility!

Okay... So, Balmothere your story starts where literally everyone's would, at the beginning of life. So, even at a young age you seemed to be like some sort of prodigy; really intelligent considering you were just a young child but not with your own drawbacks, right? I saw in your biography that someone writing it said you may be a "Possible Psychopath" and that you were, perhaps are "Impossible to Quantify", spending your time laughing hysterically as much as reading and learning, right? I-I can't really speak about leadership that well, I'm... Still not very good at it, but... Uhm... I'll stop with that. I don't really want to say it, I hope you understand.

But I suppose I can at least say this I suppose; I don't think you were always destined to take such a high point of leadership for your tribe, your civilisation. A Prime Archivist unfortunately bites the big one and people start looking for a replacement. You weren't the first choice, right? But you ended up being the only choice, because you'd be the only one willing to work with this General Achadeus. - I'm glad I'm only typing that out on this weird stone with a screen I have instead of trying to pronounce it - Is he really that hard to work with?

I can't really say the same... I mean, I'm the one and only son of... Of mother. So I knew that eventually, I'd have to take her place as King when she inevitably...

Uhm But I didn't expect it to be so soon... Look at me, I can barely cope with mother's passing, let alone lead a community. I'm sorry for getting emotional, it seems to happen all the time whenever I think about what happened. I... I'll try to continue, if anything so I can stop thinking about it.

... Okay. So you seemed weird to pretty much everyone, yet even then you had the charisma to gain a few friends here and there, which is good, really good. I mean, I never really got the chance to have any true friends. I've been a recluse for most of my short life up until that Crisis and after the fact, being forced into my role as future king, - for now Prince - so I'm really happy for you that you managed that! Do you still talk to them, hang out with them sometimes? If I may say; please don't lose them, you'd be worse off for it. You passed these tests at early ages and even found the time to teach yourself some "martial arts"?.. Art... Martial. So, you became skilled in fighting, right? I guess that's a good thing! Though I guess that's a given, because you went onto fight for your realm and do well enough... I think? But you wouldn't go very far up that career because no one wanted to promote you or something? Because of an anti-authority streak? That seems kind of surprising and out of the blue to hear this far into your little biography! Eventually,

you'd reach your current point; working as a powerful figure under that General that was mentioned before, and...

Zora Soldier of Hyrule, Ametu

"Hey ho! I thought I would
pop in for a bit, see how our favourite Forum is doing and maybe just get a little bit
involved!
Though I might not be too
involved
honestly, I have a couple of things planned for my near future after all!
Oh, hiya Ralis.

So, I thought I would butt in to say... Wow, Balmothere!
You are awfully powerful, are you not? To the point of this power seeming
rather artificial.
I know, I know,
that sounds
completely ridiculous but let me explain
real quick. So, despite having what seemed to be a decently average
childhood, considering that many of the specifics have been omitted, maybe with exception to the possibility that you may have been an orphan, what with your own comments about mother and father off to the side; in both a literal
and figurative sense, and despite doing things that many others could also say they have done, namely serve in the Armed Forces for a spell and this all compounded by the fact that you may, may be a little mentally unwell; the conductor preaches to the choir I know, 😊 you seem a little too extraordinary. What, you have like eight or more different powers like being able to shock someone with volts enough to kill them with contact and your book of yours that can create holographic copies and give you a little personal forcefield along with so much more, not even to mention the whole "Oh, I have a photographic memory" and "Oh, I am almost as smart as a blooming Quantum Supercomputer", why do I get the feeling that either your biographer might be overestimating your strengths and being a little too hyperbolic, or that; dare I say... Hmm, I dare not say actually, but to the people behind the screen, I am sure you know what I might say, teehee!

But, maybe it is all true. Maybe

I will have to come over and meet you personally, Balmothere to see for myself. And maybe, I will stop interrupting the Zora Prince and leave for the time being...
Ta ta!

"... Well then, that was certainly quite unorthodox! Though, that is an accurate description of my regent's sister in all regards! But, I think I actually appreciate Ametu butting in here to say her piece, because I think she actually brought up a few things I might have said myself, and conveniently the part of your biography I wanted to cover next before concluding. So, I sure do not know what Ametu is talking about when she says "the people behind the screen" but I think I understand what she pointed out otherwise, and yeah, I'd perhaps suggest you have a little talk with the biographer who has been talking about you, and maybe see if you can't help him make a few corrections to it if there's any to be made? I mean, I wrote mine myself so the only person

I need to ask about it is myself, eh? But yeah, you do seem rather powerful, Balmothere!
And I mean hey,
if your power goes in the right direction to help the right people, then all the better, right?
And that is what you'll do, right? I mean, I did see the stuff about your personality and philosophy and the fact that your opinion on what is right and wrong is as dynamic as the weather above to paraphrase
your own
quote, so...
Maybe I'm a little worried, but of course I can't speak for you!

Otherwise, you seem like a really interesting person, and I've enjoyed talking about you and I hope my musings - and Ametu's of course - are just as enjoyable to go through. I think this is the right time to conclude, so let's do it!

Mister Prime
Archivist,
thanks for giving me the opportunity to talk about you, because to be honest, I really like doing stuff like this! It's both entertaining
and educational,
and who knows?

Maybe some of the things I learn here could help me out in the future with my whole rulership as well, and maybe, just maybe I can make some distant friends along with it. I am looking at you, Inogo, Anatoly, Yunru ;P So, see you some other time, yes? I hope I've not been too rude here.

I used two characters here BN,[*1] but of course I'll only ask for you to review and use your own character to talk about one of them, and in this case, I'll point you to Prince Ralis, because he's the first one I used here and also the one with the completed dispatch!

Of course, as usual, I'll stipulate that one-liners or generic posts are going to be /stillme'd. I try not to ask for much, but a few lines or a small paragraph explaining how your character feels about my own is fine by me! I'd love to have something more comprehensive as well, of course, but as I said, I don't want to ask for something as large as what I put out, that would be unfair! My original point still applies though, of course. Now then, go wild BN!
