I noticed you got the timeline wrong, so I went back and read my factbook. I realized I wasn't clear with it, so I decided to fix that up and add a guide for the calendar in this world. Thanks for helping me out with this, even if you didn't necessarily mean to lol

The Waisnorian currency -the Thaler- was introduced in 1992, and can be found in 4 different coin types and 7 different banknote types, going from $0.5 to $2,000. How a Thaler is pegged to USD (or NSD) I don't know.

They are an esoteric fascist state in the former United States; they have advanced power armor, lasers, and the vast majority of the population is disenfranchised. The people worship The Founding Fathers as Ayrar gods sent to create a mythical utopia; the Sun is considered the embodiment of George Washington, while his remains are venerated and enshrined.

AN:

They are a nomadic band of warriors who worship a possibly Lovecraftian deity; the Sky-Mother, a goddess who sends the clouds and winds as messengers. They use fast attack tactics and are armed with composite bows and various blades, while making use of auxiliaries as cannon fodder and support units.

I particularly found this bit interesting from the history section: Singapore was then under hold of the Sultan of Johore, under inflow from the Netherlands. The Sultan would, Raffles knew, never give over Singapore to the Anglo-Danes, but there was another way. The Sultan's brother -Tengku Hussein- would agree to let Anglo-Danes put tradeposts in Singapore if they helped him become Sultan there. With Anglo-Danish help, he was crowned Sultan in Singapore 1819, and while he held some weald at first, by the Fordrawing of 1824, he was all but sidelined.

If I am reading this right, it would seem that Singapore in this world was held by Johore (Johor, more or less), from the Dutch giving them an influx of people and capital (at least, I think that was what "under inflow" would mean in this context). It would be more or less close to the history of RL Singapore, so I was quite happy with that little bit. The deviation would be the fact that this seemed to have happened a little later, because around that year and timeframe, the British would have eventually taken over Singapore, and we became (part of) the British colony.

I can only wonder what would happen if Singapore was fully under control of the Anglo-Danes, or hell, if the Sultan managed to anticipate the Great Wars. Would certainly make for more interesting read, and if WW1-2 happened in your world, might change how Singapore might be shaped, or if it even went into the Japanese Occupation phase.

I particularly love this bit! Each Ravenelki wears a set of elaborately decorated black and red power armor, which is perhaps the most durable in serial production in the Empire, bested only in durability by the personal armor worn by Alexander Mercer himself. Their armor is powered by an experimental reactor which uses E-99 to power it, using a fusion of technology and magic. They can use these to access other dimensions, travel to places instantaneously, and then emerge there in our dimension with no time having passed.

Learning about the fact that technology and magic plays hand-in-hand in their world, and being able to travel to other dimensions without time being passed. Of course, the "no time having passed" would mean that it was only for the dimensional travel, so I was wondering if they could, in theory, pull a Narnia? Can they travel to Dimension B, spend maybe 4 days in there, and travel back to Dimension A with exactly 1 second being passed?

The country is run as a (semi-)direct democracy, where the lower house of the legislature is made up of all 68,275,005 (gulp) citizens, while the upper house is more akin to an advisory channel of experts for the citizenry. The experts are elected by the citizenry - one wonders how expert they are, then - with each eard electing 5 experts to the council, for a total of 90 elected seats. There is also an elected "Representative" who acts as the foreign representative of the country; the current Representative was elected on his birthday! Good on him.

Langenia, a land that controls much of what used to be the Spanish colonies of New Granada and Peru, has its origins in, surprisingly enough, the Inca Empire. After Pizarro was assassinated, the Spanish settlers sought to restore the Empire by taking over the Spanish colonies in Southern America... which is curious for a variety of reasons, not the least of which being the fact that at that point in time such an event would have been impossible.

The first group to colonize the region of space Qhevak is in, the Oyuins, were basically a bunch of artist-philosophers who decided to play transhumanist Amish and booked it for uncharted space, wherein they set up their ideal community far from the influence of established political entities. Precisely half a year's journey from them, in fact.

They paid for all this via an interstellar GoFundMe.

It is contradictory. It's got lots of guttural sounds and phrases, but a lot of words just flow off the tongue. It's a problem I need to sort out a bit more.

The precursor to modern Pulsroth was an absolute monarchy founded in the 13th century. This monarchy grew into a strong empire that ruled with ruthless efficiency. However it's hyper-militaristic culture contributed to be infighting and unrest, and while the factbook hasn't reach that point, it seems that this paved the way for British conquest.

What if Eastern Rome survived?

Basic Overview: Basically an althist where Basil II actually has decent successors who build on his achievements, resulting in a STRONK ERE that beats back the Sejuks and eventually does it's own reconquesta in the Middle East. Also, The Crusades never happened, the Viking conquest of Britain succeeded, Genghis Khan died as a young prisoner in a tribal camp, Alexander Nevsky united Russia, and the HRE became a centralized state and destroyed France and the Normans.

Their current-ish emperor rose to power on the backs of a right-wing coup that for went full-on batshit reactionary with making him a total ruler, with the Senate filling little more than an advisory role.

Oh good lord... somebody's being quick on the draw...

Above ninja: in regards to 'the war', reading between the lines seems to suggest that the unknown war is going rather poorly, as of that last entry.
