It seems the Stanieran Police has seen better days, and now have to rely on hiring rotting old hippies to enforce the law, a true shame, indeed. I suppose based on the information, I've read, he, wait, no that's a female?! I could swear that was a male a minute ago, oh well, we live in the strangest of times, and I hate it. Otherwise, moving on, Angie has performed well despite her appearance and taste of clothing, uncovering Assassinations and Drug-dealing operations quite impressive for someone of her particular stature, and as she continues to dive deeper into the wonders of the criminal underworld, it will be very much interesting to see if she can find the culprits and put them to justice.

“ So the great Shawn Bjornson wasn't a lab-born, magical fusion of Skyhooked's leaders after all? Just an ordinary citizen they pulled off the street, who happened to have all the right qualities to embody Skyhookedian values and lead it forward? I would have liked to think of him as an avatar of savagery and hedonism, as those are so often considered the defining traits of the Skyhookedian people - but really, he does a subpar job in embodying those, what with his moral crusades in the name of democratic idealism. This failing of his in appropriately embodying the concepts of wanton indulgence and absolute debauchery make him far less interesting in my eyes. A simple, run-of-the-mill ideologue, nothing more.

This supposed "God Aweas" is even less interesting. It seems to be under the impression that its exceedingly long age number is remotely impressive. And yet, for all those digits, that ridiculously long string of numbers is still finite. If this "Aweas" even is an existing spiritual entity, it would still be a mere fragment of something greater, something eternal and everlasting. And here it is, flailing about in impotence as it desperately and embarrassingly tries to match its progenitor in cosmic importance by acquiring mortal worshippers and feeding them stories. A self-proclaimed God of all reality, with the petulance of a simple child, feeding its mundane ego off of the adulation of creatures that should be beneath its notice.

Now, Kokichi Oma - here is a truly glorious leader. Far surpassing any false "Gods" or self-righteous "overbosses"; here is someone who is truly wise, noble, and just, who knows how to lead a nation to true glory under his guiding light, under the revolutionary, eternal principles of Socialism-Communism. Free from the horrors of spaghetti pizza, three-way handshakes, and ponytail pulling, the people of the Socialist Communist States are blessed under his leadership to live in an era of prosperity, greatness, and privatisation. May his reign be long, and his profits abundant.

Otherwise, there isn't any of note regarding her leadership to praise or condemn, I can only assume she is a benevolent monarch based on her rise to power or just a figurehead that only preaches good moral values. of law, he was a talented professional football player and he did impressive feats, no wonder, he still wears his old kit... he moved on, yet his heart is still remains at the pitch. And he also showed aptitude at law, which is twice as impressive, because those fields are separate.

Oh, and we have different tastes in outfits... I prefer my battle scars and tattoos on arms to be visible, especially that near elbow, which I got when I was a simple warrior, and fought in North Korean campaign, and I dress more... casually, it's mostly either bandshirt or light battle armor.

The Time Lords are very powerful beings, capable of thirteen lives and often more. One would think they are inclined to use this power, but we find that Phoenix Arcanum is instead weaker as a leader than many others we have seen. He insists both on useless "civil rights" and on the inefficient economic system of capitalism. The greatest quality of his leadership would seem to be his use of an arbitrary and constantly changing "Enemy" concept, which has been shown by fascist nations to be an excellent propaganda technique. But upon closer inspection the "Enemy" concept is not used effectively as propaganda. So overall our opinion is negative.
