Inklings can change their color at will, as their brains can send many different impulses to the ink sacs in their bodies, which manufacture the corresponding chemicals that determine color.

It is not uncommon for people in Karamiko to be polyglots; many if not all of them actually know seven different languages and can alternate between them.

Contrary to what I initially thought their religion would be, it is actually focused heavily on ancestral worship, along with the veneration of nature. At one point, the Imperial Figurehead was considered a living personification of the Islands.

Kabzeel, meaning "God's Gathering" in hebrew, is a federal, dominant-party, socialist(non-marxist)constitutional monarchy with a rich Jewish heritage dating back to it's creation in 845 CE. Today, it spans almost the entirety of Eastern Europe and is the largest predominately Jewish and female-led state in the world as it follows the doctrine of "Royal Socialism", a paternalistic conservative ideology with an emphasis on socialization, social ownership, and conservative feminism. Its relationship with Israel is noticeably rocky, but this is due to the ongoing complications between Kabzeelian and Israeli Zionism.

They consider "anti-social" behaviours to be punishable offenses - these include public nudity, possession of pornography and participation in "anti-social subcultures" - sounds rather close to jailing people for wrongthink, if I'm honest.

Their storyline diverges from that of the Elder Scrolls series proper with the assassination of Ulfric Stormcloak by the Morag Tong, on the behest of a radical offshoot of House Hlaalu seeking to expand their reach into Skyrim. He is then succeeded by the Dragonborn, who proceeds to establish a sovereign kingdom in the East of Skyrim.

How would that amount to 'systemic eradication'? Religion has been declining in most nations recently, and the canon year of my nation is 2084.
