Ok but which is a better way to win a dick-measuring contest, as pretty much every single naval arms race in human history has been: Big, flashy and overly cost-inefficient ships you can make giant propaganda of, or something useful?

Navies really get neglected on NS 🙄

This is me but I avoid due to less knowledge of how modern naval combat works vs modern ground or aerial combat. All I know of modern naval combat is "ships and aircraft lob missiles at each other while ships attempt to shoot down missiles with CIWS." I might fill in the navy section of my military factbook, which currently only describes the naval infantry, one day.

Republic of Dayganistan

A secular, Tajik dominated state in Central Asia which has experienced 40 years of democratic backsliding. NS stats are NOT used.

Literally measure them and accurately record the results, then place them on a line graph. Do multiple measurements to account for possible errors.

"Furthermore, I submit that ~~Carthage~~ NSG must be destroyed."

A traumatized, but recovering, MT-PMT constitutional monarchy consisting of a personal union of Prussia and Poland. A land of rampant gun ownership, governmental schizophrenia, militias with enough heavy weapons to turn an armored division into a badly-shaken battalion of light infantry, and terrified USAF personnel counting down the days until they rotate back home.

Weaponization rate(14 weapons per person) and crime rate(1.77 crimes per hour) both canon. Cry about it.

One common NS Cliche is as follows: the undeclared alternate. A nation that is an alt, and is very clearly an alt, and many people put forward often accurate suspicions towards what exactly it is an alt of, but if is never officially confirmed as an alt until directly called out on it and sometimes not even then.

boring and impractical, send a swarm of 10 million space drones instead to bomb everything 🤖

Decepticon Military and the Decepticon Raider Front say "hi!"

We also say, why use non-sapient drones whose patterns can be figured out, when you can use a billion sapient, space-worthy, transforming war robots with energy blasters instead?

The Troas Sector wrote:

Another sub-cliche are space nations with no water navies even if they are essential to protect the waterways between regions from even basic pirates or criminals.

1. Victorious Decepticons' home world has no bodies of water on the surface. Only a few underground reservoirs.

2. On other planets, it's easier to just fly by and strafe anything on the water with energy-blaster fire. Some of us can even swim if it's actually needed. Sea-ships are way too limited in their capabilities. They don't even transform!

2a. Who cares about the water anyway? It's pretty irrelevant when we fly in from space and just go wherever we want from there. A defending planet could have a huge sea navy, and it'd be about as useful against us as a bedsheet in a hurricane. We typically just ignore defending navies altogether, since they're so easy to stay out of range of. If they're too pesty, see Main Point #2: We'll fly over and blast 'em.

3. In any case, WERE the pirates. What do you think we're doing on these watery worlds, anyway? If we haven't taken over, we're there to raid the place. If we HAVE taken over, we're there to raid it in a more orderly fashion. But we're always there to raid it. Biological worlds are only worth our attention if they have some resources worth taking and/or some slaves that we can press into service doing the labor involved.
