"Okay, what is it this - Oh! I did not realize they made fucking morons in Extremely Extra Large. You think that just because you have multiverse time travel, it makes you 'fate' or some fucking shit? Only stupid children believe in 'fate'. You're just an overgrown toddler that hasn't yet been weaned off of stupid fucking fairy tales yet. There are no gods! There is no fate! There is only science, logic, and reason, and everything else is meaningless! You go around trying to spread 'hope', but that is nothing more than the firing of neurons and release of chemicals in the brain. You think it is more meaningful than that, but it isn't! You aren't helping anyone, you fucking cretin! I hate you, I hate your dumb name, I hate your stupid hope, I hate your 'happy-go-lucky' attitude', I hate your fucking 'altruism', I hate your idiot friends, I hate everything about you. Everything about you is objectively stupid. It matters not how large you are, in the end I'll have your stupid ass dissected so we can reverse engineer your tech. I dare any of your stupid friends to try and stop me - I'll have your stupid planet glassed across billions of timelines. Leader - Yona

"My my, Yona, getting a little worked up there, aren't we? I can't help but feel you have a great deal of bitterness and jealousy towards Gwen and everything she stands for. Maybe your not-so-great past and not having the right kind of people to help you when you actually needed it is the reason why you behave like this, down a path of naught but destruction and hatred towards all others. But, as I have said before, your path of senseless conquest is going to get you into trouble one day. There are many others out there in the omniverse who are much stronger than you and your entire military might put together that even I wouldn't dream of standing up against. I will assure you now, that it would be very unwise to provoke them, lest you wish to seal your fate with them. Even the void watches you, making sure that you do not overstep your boundaries of power. Once you do though, both it and it's children will come for you. You will not win, and you will not escape... Consider this a warning..."

Interesting person - or being if she so desires to be called as such - this Sera. A benevolent entity from another universe, that has a great amount of magical properties and skills under her belt, and that has used it not only to make a previously uninhabitable planet, into a place where life breathes and thrives, and also has gone out of her way to save people in moments of dire necessity. I must say she has quite the right head over her shoulders - if that applies to her in any shape or form - since most people with those kinds of powers to either create or destroy will most likely use it for the latter instead of the former as she does, along with the protection of already existing creations. I must say that, I am quite impressed with this pleasant turn of events, and I wish her and the people she saved nothing but the best

It's red, but it's definitely Earth! There are plains everywhere, my sensors indicate that the atmosphere is indeed of Earth. And then I saw her, Ari was her name! On her horse, she kept a distance from me, a little wary about who I was, or where I was from. Then something probably went off in her head. She seemed to recognise me, maybe because of the height. I stood approximately 472 cm tall, looking down at Ari and her people, who were actually sort of aiming their weapons at me. I told them I mean no harm, talking slowly and steadily, and the next thing you know, I think we might have struck something quite wonderful. The way she speaks is certainly something I can put up with, and as I was told about her history from word-of-mouth and writings (which they translated for me), it was a pretty amazing experience. To think I have traveled to another universe, stopping myself before slamming down on this very Earth at $1e+40$ km/h. I do find her to be quite positive so far, even if the history of her is a little on the warring and brutal side. She does have a lot of knives, and she gifted one to me. I have to make room in my spaceship soon, because all this gift I am getting is slowing it down. I also ate with them, their food miraculously not causing problems on my stomach, so there!

And of course, my amazement comes in this world where I met this President. At least, the one that claims himself to be one. I am no stranger to meeting extradimensional and extra-worldly persons and beings, but he was quite a scary one even for someone of my stature! He didn't bite, which I am happy of. I see that he has an evaluation form similar to this one place where we were friends with- ah yes, the Zitragradians! Anyway, looking through it, I found Sesh Tzang Zhyrkoski to be quite an amicable person, as friendly as Ari and the group. I definitely have quite a bit of enjoyment as he shared about his autobiography, and his book "Between Brass Towers" is definitely welcome, too. I managed to get a copy of both of these books, and yes, the ship still has some space, albeit getting a little cramped! I am pretty positive of him, that is reassuring because I would rather meet someone like this, than having to fly as fast as I can from those that were shooting at me. Well, until next time! I do hope he will have a good day!

I mean, sleeping on top of valuables is one thing, but considering how much management she has to carry out, and seems to do it pretty well from how things. Hardly something you would call lazy (that title should be more for me, and I am not afraid to admit that, I can be pretty lazy at times). Marut seems to be all about benefitting from war in every way, which, while I personally do not find it in any way appealing, I see the reasons why. Also, buffet tables? Yes, definitely. I am also a fellow lover of eating, even though I have no reason to eat since I am merely an avatar in this plane of existence, the sensations I receive from doing so it too good to pass up... Lastly, I am curious about your psionic capabilities. The void appears to have no concern of it, but I myself would love to know more about it and its effects against those that are not even in your plane of reality. Maybe one day we could test your abilities in the form of friendly combat between each other, if it appeals to you. I enjoy a good spar, especially with those who hold interesting abilities. Despite a few conflicting

I admire the man for what he is, a man of great convictions, but I fear that he has too many of those convictions and that he is becoming too much of a philosopher for his own good. Sometimes I wish he were dead, and sometimes I wish he were still alive.... I do not think he understands, or respects, the complexities of the human condition. He has failed the people of Patagonia in many ways, most notably in the economic sphere, but more importantly in the cultural sphere, where his ideals have taken live in a nosedive. He has failed Patagonia as a state, a failing that has could lead to his untimely death...

Too sympathetic. If you empathise too much with others, you become weak and malleable, which is good for me, but a bad trait for a leader nonetheless. Perhaps a leader more aloof could be more respectable.

Someone who sounded condescending with every syllable they speak, which is like mosquitoes in my ears. Yeah, I honestly don't have nothing good to say about you, and trust me, I really am trying. Maybe being blunt can help in stopping bush-beating but seriously, what is the trend with leaders thinking that rules don't apply to them, or that they get to treat everyone like crap?

"Valentijn is quite the friendly fellow and one I'd consider a friend. Though he is quite intimidating with his height. I think I could describe him literally as a beacon of hope and kindness. He has been in such strange and interesting situations throughout his past that it's kind of remarkable that he can retain such a friendly manner most of the time. A nuclear war, creating a project to save some of humanity, being hit by one of the bombs... Sounds like a dream, a nightmare even, but this man actually lived through it."

"Oh, for fuck's sakes! Why are there so many damn white haired people on here?! The phenotype doesn't even exist in my timeline, I think. Is every other timeline predisposed towards- Wait a second, this bitch is from Nazi Germany. Okay, so basically a bunch of German officers decided to recruit magical people, who somehow exist without affecting the timeline too much, to fight in the war effort. So, the existence of magic and white-haired people somehow didn't affect the timeline. Furthermore, the Nazis, with their traditionalist view on gender roles, somehow were totally cool with recruiting little girls in their war effort. I mean, the Nazis were hesitant about putting women in the workplace, let alone in the front-lines in a customized tank. Speaking of which, wouldn't it be better to use a half-track? Since, you'd expect your magical supersoldiers to actually use their magic.

And, cry me a river about Soviet brutality. Look, I'm not going to justify their atrocities, but having a burning hatred for the Soviets and a wish to get revenge on them for that is hypocritical when the whole reason they were brutal towards your country was because of what your country did to them just years earlier.

This entire bio just reads like something that a German officer with a fetish for small girls would write. Everything from wanting a more moderate form of German nationalism to brushing away Nazi warcrimes and racial theories.

This banal nationalism of the Prussian junker belongs in the trash. I mean, junk is in the name.

Then again, I guess they aren't as bad as Hitler and his ilk, though I think the best Nazi has to be Otto Strasser. And, that guy only was in the party for like 5 years and became one of Hitler's biggest opponents afterwards.

Wait, why did they add 'Azur' to Germany's name? I'm so confused."

No, it is not the Confederate States of America. No, it's not the South either. SU stands for 'States and Unions'. The right acronym is RCAS. Please read the Factbook.

"Hello hello! How are you all...? Oh! Look you are so cute...! And your personality is... Not so nice, not to mention what you've done too. I'm starting to think I was the wrong choice for this opinion - like - I don't like what he's done, but I don't have it in me to tell him off! Behind the scenes? Sure! I can say what I think, like he's a racist and that's bad and stuff like what's he's been involved is pretty morally grey - but that would be hypocritical given I hang around morally grey people myself... Wait! Am I having a moral and existential crisis?! Is this this what it's like to question your existence?! ENNIO! ENNIO! Where are you?! We need to talk!"
