"Oh, I may be a large and tall guy, weighting more than 100 kg, but Valentijn can just pick me up like some action figure and call me "adorable hairy man". I can shatter and crush skulls and most helmets with my wardub, but if he strikes somewhere with his hammer... he could demolish several buildings. Feels unusual to be a little guy. I am glad, that he and all Valentine Z is our totally wholesome friend! When the war with Octavia is over, I'll drive by one day! And since, he is an avid cat lover, I will send him my maine coon cat for care, so this feline would be safe and well cared until the war is over. I could have taken my pet with me, but I need to fight alongside my men, and there is a risk of a stray bullet."-Overboss Shawn Bjornson

"Monarchy is a device built on the concept of Divine Right of Kings, is it not? None of the international divinities, and certainly not the holy Omnimyth, has ever made a human a king, especially not one as drunken as this pathetic, quavering biomass. His support of capitalism is noteworthy - it is worthy of note that he would support such a godless economic system. Support for human rights? How childish. Humans are to myself what single-celled organisms are to humans, so the so-called king's delusions, especially his delusions of adequacy are made all the more amusing by the fact that he has not evolved as far from an amoeba as he seems to think. Oh verily, do drink yourself into a stupor over this realization that all you have is for naught, that humans are nothing more than apes, it only serves to better prove my point. Without the Way, mortal life means nothing."

OFFICE OF THE PREMIER

Regarding Chancellor Naomi Sun,

In order to become Premier of the French State in Canada, I had to fight on the frontlines of frostbitten Montreal, wade in the frozen channel of the Prairies River, spend sleepless nights to obtain near useless-in-practicality Theological Degrees, not to mention build a French Republic of where none stood before. That is what I had to sacrifice to become 'Premier'.

Chancellor Sun just had to get a Digital Arts Diploma. A field of study I personally have the Education Ministry invest into. Beyond my dreams and beyond my imagination would there ever exist a country of which could sufficiently be led by a child whose only prerequisites in leadership are schoolgirl debate clubs.

For Chancellor Sun there is no personality, character, or an ounce charismatic appeal that isn't repeated time and time again amongst the commonfolk. Maybe that works for a country like Pacifica Solaris, to have nobody special represent them. I can attest however, the French would accept nobody less than I.

"I often wonder how people like Lesage function. How can you be such a fanatic for some form of righteousness, and at the same time be so cynical with regards to elections, vote-rigging and the like? The Cleric is a dictator - not an unskilled or charmless one, I'll give him that much - who has abandoned popular rule completely, and seeks to impose his ideals on all of Quebec at any cost. But at least we can all take comfort in the fact that he believes freedom to be a weakness, and thus is stuck with a bureaucracy based more on compliance than success - which, in turn, makes him weaker than if he were a democratic leader. And to think he believes that I'm the one weakening my country."
