???: Stay determined, Erin and Indy. Don't give up on saving this lost realm.

Erin: Oof. reloads save file

Upon this reload, Blake dies of a case of "wrong place at the wrong time", and that case of the Ashotu virus dies with him.

O'Brien takes the same teleporter, with Erin and Indy as well. However, Erin takes the jumpscare this time, preventing the others from being influenced by it, and since her sanity score is much higher than O'Brien's or Indy's, she survives the jumpscare without significant ill effects. The three of them then open fire on Freddy since he's a robot, eventually rendering him inanimate. They all gain 1322 XP from this, but that isn't enough to level up anyone except Indy.

Soon, they see someone familiar inside Freddy's place.

Erin: Dread? Haven't seen you in a while.

Dread: Nice to see you again. Also, is that you, Jake?

O'Brien: Jake? Who's that?

Dread: An old friend of mine. Outside of Mina's circles no one knows of him.

Turns out not enjoying existence is a symptom of Ashotu virus. Aila suddenly shows up out of nowhere and cures Man's Ashotu virus, then heads over to Zimbar Island to deliver the medicines to where O'Brien and his team are.

Ugh, Ashotu doubleposting here is just like The Abkhaz constantly hating Nuloerkun, it's so displeasing to just look at.

But anyway!

While the gang on Zimbar Island do their work, an alternate O'Brien, created as the result of the first usage of the Teleporter, uses a duplicated teleporter, and unwittingly transports himself into the literal geographical center of the Sonora Desert.

Not enjoying existence is not a symptom

Here are the real symptoms

Lashing out at others

Rice obsession

Coughing

Sneezing

And there is no cure!

Well, Aila and Mina's teams have developed one and aren't averse to using it.

Back to Zimbar Island: the reset was followed up by Erin's save file getting loaded again, starting where everything was left off at the reset. The next area they explore has more random robots and stuff, but no jumpscars.

As they cross a bridge in that region, Jake's ghost appears before Dread, along with another ghost who doesn't seem familiar to anyone here.

Dread: Seriously? What is this cruel trick?

Erin: I know of something that can actually revive them.

Virus alters reality so any cures will make the virus worse

Dread sees things that aren't real, the final symptom

These visions are of him, one of them is where everyone ignores him, one where he starts turning into weird monsters, and then he feels like they are actually happening, and he spirals into madness.

This final symptom is really uncommon though.

Out of sheer luck, the virus is erased from human existence and knowledge and cannot be brought back into reality ok we're done new universe
