Kaoma Haishi: Oh you naughty sinful boy! You need Jesus! Look at all the shady things you've done, forging your identity, you scammed and murdered a guy, and you smuggled questionable goods! I don't know if your efforts in developing your country, ending inequality, and increasing general health are enough to counterbalance that, considering you rule with quite an iron grip on society.

Kai Tsoufan: Well, at least you understand the importance of national unity and honestly you're quite a realistic person, sometimes you have to fight for peace. Speaking of fights, you're quite the skilled fighter there, but be careful with your Chakra wellbeing, otherwise you might lose the ability to do the Pursuit thing... and you know, keep piling up on the good deeds, otherwise karma is going to bite you in the arse sooner or later. If anything is your superpower it's your acting skills, why not make a film? I think you have a bright career as an actor.

"Well, I haven't gone over a file in some time. Let's see here... Supreme Dictator Cordato. Actually, I've already read through this one. Ms. Cordato is quite the individual. To be honest, I admire her. She broke up unproductive pharmaceutical monopolies, then used the wealth from her company to provide for the entire Southeast. And after all the wars and strife she's suffered maintaining her rule, she still hasn't succumbed to the power it gives her. The kind of drive required to pull that off, it's incredible... Plus, it's always nice to see another American Catholic. We ought to stick together."

But much of it is nonsense and not coherent when it comes to his rise to power, and how he managed to get resurrected and return to power. Not to mention the vague wars he partook in and started with no reason as to why, and additionally, his policies are practically nonexistent aside from military reform and the new campaigns under his reign. Those tell little of what advantage he is giving his country, and how it is on a general scale is improving the value of his assets. There much be more policies enacted to appease the masses, but if not, it will be hardly surprising at what he is currently doing will soon end in a revolt. Wars can only get you so far with the populace."

"This woman is a pompous, useless "monarch" who might win a beauty pageant (the people of her country have bad taste) but could not really run a country. At the very least, this "monarch" does not have power, there is nothing worse than a pompous, self-righteous hereditary dictator who parasites off the populace. It is good that she is the typical type of progressive monarch who voluntarily ends her own family line, it saves the British people from the trouble of 'removing' her family themselves. Her country is a failed state. As a boy, I was taught in school that the British had become a failed state after it could no longer enforce its imperial will on other countries. "It all started with Kaoma being stuck in a bus and going late to classes... With her zealous attitude towards studying, she disliked being late so much, that she dedicated her life to tending to a faulty, slow-as-hell infrastructure. And as a minister of infrastructure and transport, she did a rather good job. But working for her is a separate circle of hell, if ya' screw up, even a lil' bit, or go late even one second on tight deadline, where ya' gonna be on the run, like you are bitten by a bullet ant in the ass, she gonna slap the hell out of ya'. Consider yourself lucky, if she doesn't throw a heavy book about traffic right in your face! And no, the fact, that she is an Orthodox christian doesn't mean, that if she slaps you, you should turn the other cheek... she will slap it too without needing your help! Still, I highly respect her, but I really, really wouldn't want to work for her. "

"Shawn Bjomson, a barbarian, and ideological fanatic made into a rowdy politician. How interesting, but it is expected from a country that experienced hell, only to unleash hell to undo the tyrant's wrath that has degraded his subjects to be nothing more than wild raiders. That only freedom through violence, and not through any other means. It is a pity, but that does imply I sympathize with them. They could pose a problem for me in the future. Although the chance of it is unlikely, in my time, it never hurts to have a contingency plan in case an unexpected issue emerges. Nevertheless, Bjomson is a lucky leader by making educated guesses to at least have his assets experience a good time before the country fell under a brutal theocracy. I do wish him the best."

All I see is not a leader, but a soldier. A hollow soul, willing to push themselves to the limit to have their way. Sure, they won a war, their own war, but eventually, things will collapse again. With this oddly hostile stance on science, I doubt he could possibly push beyond his frail, weak body. But beyond that, his will is strong as well as his plans. To turn the system against itself is almost an achievement, one that is worth celebrating. A shame that he focused the economy more internally than externally, hence, exports would be limited... Or should be, anyway. In all reality there's bound to be trade, but with a greater emphasis on the self. Now... One question that I have, is whether or not he lives in perpetual fear, given his puppets have the freedom to overthrow him as he took out Andrew Ryan. Sure, he did change things "for the better" ... But it's been such a short while since the war, there's still bound to be some resistance fighters wanting to restore the old order, no matter how hard he looks. Hence, I'd even recommend him militarized police. Still, I suppose we could be friends? Maybe?

So, a 'High Princess', huh? Normally I'd think that communists don't like monarchy, but I've seen weirder polities in my time, so whatever. I've never actually seen communism in its pure form before. I never got to see the Ilkhan Commune, and the ideology of the Mechyrdian communist movements is just progressive liberalism with red paint. (Though the same could be said of Mechyrdian capitalism, that it's just authoritarian central planning with gold paint.)

But I digress. Normally in life stories such as this, I'd praise you for working hard, succeeding well, and ruthlessly crushing your enemies. But I don't as much of that as in other rise-to-power stories. You were able to ride to the top, not only because you were easy to indoctrinate, but also because other people weren't as lucky as you. You were trusted because of your loyalty to the state's ideology - again, easy to indoctrinate - and then you got caught in a power struggle, where your "Holy Quintet" was supported by a majority of the legislature, propelling you right to the top. Again - you got lucky.

And since you're so malleable, and so fortunate, you got to take control of an authoritarian regime. Normally I'd approve of authoritarianism, but I earned my power, through conquest and making examples out of others like all good leaders do. You were handed power on a silver platter.

Anyway, that uniform is not something that I would approve of. Revealing and other stuff aside, do you really think that's going to protect you, like at all? Also no, don't tell me "I got superpowers and I am resistant to damage" because getting shot will still suck, man. Overall, I have seen your dossier and while I will commend and give credit where credit is due, I am not going to trust someone like you to run an operation, let alone having a final say in EVERY single department. If I could forbid someone from using a name, I damn sure will.

= THE FOEHN PARAMILITARY REGIONS =

"The true enemy is still hiding in the shadows."

1986, Yuri's Epsilon Army is close to taking over the world, and a paramilitary organization tries to hold what's still free from his control.

InoGo Estima: Not gonna lie your first kill was tragic, having to kill someone, not in a quick manner, probably in pain, and worst of all, he didn't even do anything wrong to you. I mean at least I had a good reason for my first kill. You try to level my village and il level your health bar. No, no, no need to apologize, ive seen far worse than some guy taking a bath on his own blood on his death bed.

I really have mixed feelings about you being sent to the artillery division, on one part, the risk of death is lower since your far away from most of the action, but the damage you do if you hit someone is worse, have you seen the comparison, human body shot by an AK vs human body within a meter of an exploding 203mm... or in my case, a human body that was exposed to an angry shudak. Speaking of which, personally I like to get up close and personal, I have the role of recoi- rrekai? Recoinasance... fuck this military terms and scouting. I don't really have to fight all that much, just need to tell everyone else what the enemy is doing.

I think the worst part of this isn't even the killings or the gore, you're a man of faith and last time I checked killing usually results in dire divine consequences unless you talk to a priest about it, well, no way you can reverse your actions so I hope you find a priest that's willing to do the confession. I mean, in my faith, the worst thing that can happen is reincarnating as a pufferfish.

I'm surprised you didn't marry yunru by now, that would be funny.

BN do Inogo Estima, I have rewritten 95% of him

Highly democratic and freedom-loving population, what if Mongolia and Japan had a child who also has an Indian driving instructor, increasing tensions between Market Socialists and Maoists, eats the aeugh fish, pets the aeugh fish, Aruday metro train doors have a tendency to amputate riders
