I guess you could say he's really agnostic about religion, though he tends to lean towards the Protestant variety. On the other half of the coin, I feel that if he's asked whether he believed in astrology, he'll state that he "did". Then, when asked whether he believed in the existence of mythical creatures, he'll probably shake his head and replied that he had "never heard of them". Finally, when asked whether he believed in evolution, he may shake his head again and say he "never heard of it".

Supercomputer Tom
Opinion on the Fenwick
Status: Not Classified, for public's eye, if necessary

So, now it is my turn for this eccentric man... Let's see, what he has got. Bringing back the slavery? Oh wow, so terrible, so shocking, so despicable moral practice! /s But honestly, that is not even that impressive - after all, wage slavery still exists, and cabbies shouldn't be ones complaining about it. Also, your slavery is puny, if compared to our regional governors putting children to work from early age. Although, back in the days, it used to be a common sense, and not something terrible, and we brought it back, so children wouldn't become lazy.

As for the political system... You are not as terrible as those monarcho-communists, which I seriously want to strangle, but the indecisivity and hovering over the weird area is too much - either pick a Republican Lord Protector, or a Monarch! Overall, there is not much else on his views, so we are gonna call it a day, and say, that he's a normie.

Still, I find the idea of an Independent Northumbria pretty ridiculous, as Scots at least have a distinct culture, but Northumbria is English through and through - at this point, it is a core territory of England. It might have a different dialect and customs, but by that logic, we should split Romania in parts too, as it has its own dialects, and historical kingdoms like Wallachia too. Fenwick has to basically forge a new identity to justify the existence of his state, and that's a hard task. Or perhaps it could function similarly to a merchant republic, idk.

His personal life is more wild, however... He has wandered in a lot of corners where I wouldn't put my toes in, so here's that. You do your thing.

Marthow appears to be commendable leader yet his profile is quite rough and hard to make that conclusion, given the person who was in charge of writing it. Marthow should look at getting new writer to make it more professional and your appearance as a leader can be taken more seriously, and labels describing your life and leadership aren't thrown all over the place.

Otherwise, Marthow has adopted sufficient methods to remain in power and have support by the people. For my case, it's quite the opposite as all the Lowians are no better than wild animals in the jungle who always need a tight leash around their necks.

Still...Rapture has an aristocracy? Like seriously? The one thing that capitalism does 'right' is supposedly removing inherited elitism for an elitism of merit, yet here we have a 'High Aristocracy'. And, children viciously attack each other in a twisted version of Spencerian social darwinism? School gangs? Invading nations and forcing the inhabitants to work in mines? And, they have the gall to call it 'liberation'. Jesus, the more I read about the Rapture Republic, the more sickening it is.

He maybe against 'social decadence', but I think he and the elites of Rapture are the truly decadent ones. Honestly, Alexander Smith at least has a vision for the future. Stone here simply has raw, unadulterated greed."

ALEXANDER SMITH IS DEAD, LONG LIVE
SHORIS VALTHAR.]

- What in all the heavens was that? I feel dizzy. Where was I... Ah yes,
Casey Pickett.
Strange-looking guy,
if I say so myself,
but that's neither
here nor there. Let's see... Nationalism,
revolution,
socialism,
technological

advancement,
industrialism...
Looks like we're of like mind! And he even had troubles in
his childhood too.
Seems we have a fair
bit in common, how nice. Wait... Against centralisation, for democracy... Eh, whatever works. I may not like it, but if it works for America then good for him I guess. As long as he doesn't
give me shit for
doing what works
here, as democrats
like him tend to do
with insufferable
regularity. His views
in that regard
remind me of a certain... pest, I'll just put it that way.
Makes me think a lot
less of him, though
he overall seems
more or less
agreeable. I'm still bugged by that
name he mentioned, though. Alexander
Smith... Is this an identity crisis I'm feeling? What's going on?

Skyhooked:
Huh, this Bjornson
character reminds
me a lot of Pickett
in several ways. Very enthusiastic about
the whole "freedom"
thing, I see.
Personally I think it's mostly useless and
gets in the way of
greater things.
Where's your will to power? Your collective spirit? Or is the endless
pursuit of personal
freedom all you
know? Oh, whatever.
You do you.
Although given your
track record with
"liberation
crusades"... Yeah, I don't think we'll get along. I'll give Pickett a chance to
not be insufferable,
not you. If our
peoples ever cross
paths, I suppose it'll
be fun meeting you

on the battlefield.

Hm, sounds like Andrew Mercer not as intelligent. And that's about all, I can say about James here. There isn't anything else to format an opinion.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

What happens when you cross anime powers and overpowered leaders with furies, all written by a bored Homestuck fan with too much time? Well, you get Rumei. A multiethnic, FT republic with both might and magic that let it conquer the entire Orion Arm.

A 7.6 (this is probably outdated but I can't do the calculations rn) (Tier 9, Level 6, Type 9) according to this index.
Come to The Orion, we got CULTURE and FURRIES

Show Recommendation: Cobra Kai. It is very, very good.

IC Name: Roman Republic, or simply Rome (Rumei). Occasionally called the Ignisian Republic. Current year is 2697.
