6/10 My first instinct is to score low, but there's something almost... unsettling about that color scheme, and the diamond squares... Don't get me wrong I love the flag, but it feels like its trying to give me a false sense of comfort .-.

Weekli Maloniani Comm-Dispatch: SC-D found a bomb in the Ancient Malonian City of... well Malonian... Not sure how the natives made a bomb, possibly advanced civilization. Regardless, it's calling into question how exactly this place was so perfect... Until it was bombed again, that is.

10 / 10

Gives me Resident Evil vibes, on top of a non-stop rave that relies on people getting permanently smashed.

Imagine if a T-Virus can not only infect someone, but can also make them drunk and dance 24/7.

-----

AN: 4 / 10. Intimidating, but... not too evil.

7/10

It's obviously reminiscent of Rome, perhaps even meant to be representative of a continuation of that empire, which was, well, less than an ideal society by today's standards.

9.5/10. Perhaps one of the like... two flag design choices, right after a vamp colour scheme, that just instinctively feels like more of a dead giveaway of pointless authoritarianism and rule by cult of personality and enforced misery just for the sake of "keeping the proles in line" than a classical shield with a clear heraldry on it, is a much more generic-looking sort of one. At least to me. And while that has a symbol on it, I'd hesitate to call it a heraldry; it just doesn't feel at all like one.

Ehhh... 8/10. Looks democratic, maybe but any combination of a large field of red and stars and yellow elements is immediate cause for concern. All three at once, immediate investigation, likely concluding with, at bare minimum, long philosophical treatises declaring in so many words that "it's not a democracy if you brainwash your poor citizens into voting for communism and continuing their limitless suffering." And with still a high chance of a rapid motion to liberate shortly thereafter.
