Now I have a few questions to ask...
Why is the incel being hanged? What did he do? And furthermore...
Why the public execution? If it's public why would it be a crime?
I'm confused...

Had the "incel" been convicted of a previous crime like murder, then simply attending is not a crime. However, otherwise attending the lynching of an unconvicted/innocent man is punishable by Loteria, where a fraction of the able-bodied in a village is killed by losing a lottery. The chances of a person surviving are high, but the village as a whole would likely be devastated.

AAN: In-depth investigation occurs, including motives of the killing as well as the time at which it occurred, whether or not said schoolteacher was within a "special governance zone", was under curfew, whether or not she has a criminal history or is within a kill list (which raises further questions on why such a person was allowed to work as a schoolteacher), which may result in policeman being charged with at worst a deadly negligence on workplace. If she was killed as a part of a hostage situation no charges will be made against the officer- Lakan Spetsnaz has a history of using tactics and equipment that end up killing nearly all hostages because acceptable casualties.

AN: Most likely a death penalty, depending on the nature of the action and who it is directed against

As with many things in the country, it'll vary a bit case by case but generally speaking the most you'll get is a minor fine probably only a bit more than what it would have cost to purchase whatever you downloaded in the first place. It's really just there as a means of discouraging the large-scale formalization of piracy or related activities. If you want to torrent a movie or something there's not much in the way of you doing it but generally it's considered polite to just legitimately get a hold of what you want if you have the financial freedom to do so.

Dereliction of duty= Up to 14 years in prison (probably 10 in this case)

Payment for sexual intercourse= Up to 10 years (generally five years without parole)

(If witnessed by four or more reliable people) fornication= 100 lashes for Muslims (most military personnel are Muslims)

So probably overall: 15 years with or without 100 lashes.

This did not go too well for the Germans, and is now war crime. Hanging, although our nation would not be affected by this in the naval sense.
