Not a crime, if you don't count the fact that you'd be scarred of your innocence forever (and perhaps get a huge woopin' from your mom).

Considering that the FCLN heavily encourages citizens to maximize defensive capabilities with whatever they got, be it making anti tank obstacles or concocting poison gas with local chemicals, making a semi-automatic gun more capable would be the opposite of a crime. Theres no hiding of firearms in this nation-sized guerrilla that happens to be called Cierrida, the moment the cadres take notice you are interested in improving the vastly available semi-automatic weaponry into slightly less available automatic weaponry you're gonna end up smack dab in an engineering corps

Now the crime would be doing all this and refusing to provide for the revolutionary war effort, which then the usual punishment for "hesitancy to serve the revolution" of a year re-education would be applied this is considered a Felony, its punishment is for the following crimes: Theft, unlawful use of nuclear material, unlawful handling of nuclear waste, and endangerment of self and others, the sentence for all these crimes combined could range from several years to life imprisonment.

I mean it depends on what you mean by denouncing. If it means attacking them physically that is assault and is punished with up to 6 years in prison, depending on the severity. If it means just cursing and threatening them then up to 1 month plus loads of fines.

Depends on the type of planning, if it's just a 16 year old LARPing online, none.

If they are seriously planning it but don't have weapons or campaign publicly, 10 year prison.

If they are seriously planning it and they have weapons/campaign publicly, life sentence or death, depending on how successful the organisation is.

We don't have tigers in our land, However if you go to their cousins Leopards, since they are a protected species, you would get a 8 year jail sentence. In school, they teach you how to protect yourself against wild animals and how to scare them off, and most definitely not kill them.

Selling illegal drugs alone would cost 35-50 years in jail. It actually depends. If the person who sell the drugs and insist or assist them by suggestion to make the consumer reach overdose can lead to execution punishment as it is part of killing. But if it is unintended to kill, would be still in 35 years minimum.
