Boris-Spoon

First Boris album I STARTED to listen to (Then avoided forever). This is why I didn't care about the band at first...This albums mostly just not that great. Spoon I can enjoy, though, even though it comes off as more of a generic j-rock song...

Even the stuff I like by the band isn't really consistently good, in my opinion. The "Hard rock" songs don't really do anything for me. But the songs I like by them are really good.

When listening to that album, I highly appreciated their creativity, but even with that I couldn't really get into them. I dunno, the vocalists don't really help any. Their music seems more interesting than their vocalists.

Ajattara-Tulessa

Weird electronic stuff in the background of kinda boring black metal.

How I listened to all 7 of these guys albums out of my automatic need of listening through all of a bands albums for some reason, I don't know. Especially with being me when it comes to black metal, I'm not sure how I didn't just get bored with it. Probably zoned it out...

I need to clear out some stuff on my playlists since I'm deeming a lot of this stuff boring...

I have officially decided that I no longer care about going through an entire bands discography anymore. Pick the album that is considered their best, and start from there. Then decide from there on if I want to listen to more of them eventually or not. Going through 5+ albums is becoming less enjoyable for me. Unless a band is REALLY good. I'm not just going to do it with everything I found vaguely interesting anymore (A lot I don't even find interesting at all anymore)

So there's a possibility I'll have even less low rated albums since I'm going to be even more selective with my music than before from now on.

Ajattara-Surman Henki

They still have interesting sounds mixed in their music, but not enough to save it for me...
