"A dictator that adopts the eponym of a democratic leader...funnily enough I'd call myself adherent to the democratic process and am yet the Sultan. His secret service operates outside all laws and decency, he even had his own 'ism' named after himself. Truly, a paragon of everything that needs to be curb stomped. The Iron Chancellor, his Supreme assholery. The president-por-vida himself, it's ridiculous. And a history of being an ordinary criminal turned "revolutionary" too, now behind whose mustache have I seen that before? Ruling over a city-state that is infested with drugs and crime, and while seemingly technologically advanced doesn't actually provide much to its citizens. Damn, we might need to actually think about international intervention, they don't seem a threat, but still... their people would probably be rather grateful were we to step on that roach and get that technology flowing into our own economy. I'm sure nobody would really miss that ...man."

"Absolutism was the first mistake? Rich from someone who by these notes appears to have issues with weak-willed governments. You might wish to avoid such hypocrisy, as you led a rotten country that requires a strong leader and one that can only be guided by an iron hand, and not the care for the complaints of an uneducated and unwashed masses that knows not yet what is good for them. You are the Despot, born by your misfortune, to turn Liberia for the better, and not allow as you have the savages to run wild. You may think otherwise, but you've done well as a firm leader, but to be advised to only appoint those you deem worthy to succeed you, and not make the people decide who shall replace you. It will end in failure and all that you built, destroyed and buried to history."
- Chancellor John Mercer

"Dearest Chancellor, have you no concept of middle ground? I am no democrat but, I am certainly no despot. I do not run the country lest I am needed, which is very rare. Parties are selected through individuals, senators, and their representatives, rather than some outdated Greek theory of governance. I believe my point stands rather firm gentlemen. And as for the so-called emperors nod at feudalism, I say only this: affirm the ideological foundation of your government when you're not at constant risk of getting your bloody head chopped off, which considering the state of things, seems to be likely any day now. Speaking to you on what a stable state of things you've mustered up for your nation, is like speaking to Kerensky when he was president of Russia. Mediocre and not well-founded, at best." - Marshal Wilhelm Fatilly

"That festivity of his? Oh, reminds me of how I threw a hell of a party, when I got to sit in the Overboss chair! That was a hell of a reward for all the challenges I have ever passed, dudes! And I believe, I am gonna have even more awesome adventures in the future. I won't condemn festivities of Mustafa, cuz "Being more interested in party than trappings of the office" is how our council and hell... the daily life runs. At least some his policies seem fine so far... sure, he might not be a saint, but before I make a full judgement, I'll look into him for more. For example, I'll wait for how he reacts to me becoming the new leader of Sky Reavers and his thoughts on my style and looks. Perhaps, I'll also look into some of less savory details about his rule. But hey, being against discrimination is a good feat and vibe! Oh, and handling of ol' Covid crisis... Maybe, military quarantine enforcement was a bit of overreaction. At least how we see it. But that copying of vaccine without license is just awesome! Actin' for the sake of the people, not givin' shit about some corporate lawyers runnin' around and screamin' funny Latin words. Just like us... But that enforcement... Maybe it's justified, but still... the liberties are also important, man!

Oh, if he wanna decide if he should associate with us... We ain't involved with Trump, never exactly loved him, and we ain't no American Republicans, we just love guns, cuz they help to defend our nation from all and any oppressor shithead, if he ever tries to invade our awesomized resorts! And we also don't oppress those, who pray to Allah.

By the way, nice fez, Sultan dude!" - Overboss Liam Navarro

You have big shoes to fill, I'm impressed you managed to pull a fast one on the last overboss.

And looking over your files I seem to see you have had a few shortcuts here and there, but every easy way out has a price it seems looking at that arm you payed.

But I think you'll do just fine! If anything is clear you folk know your ways around things, warriors in heart and soul, and I can see it in yours, the way you look to improve your people by linking them together and mixing their traditions, I can only hope they agree in this process.

I remember when we tried it, it caused the grand mage hunt.

Don't get too cocky in your position, you wouldn't want to end up as a laughing stock, or dead.

I do thank you though, you didn't kill Shawn, and you seem to genuinely care for the betterment of your people. I look forward to seeing you in the future." - Luden

"There is nothing truly remarkable about the savage beast. That is not meant to cause offense, but merely a state of fact by his nature of his kind. He dwells in chaotic lands that spill blood to decide their Chiefs, and not by their merits as we do in Rapture. It is a primitive society without a future to climb towards a more modern civilization. It is disappointing to see, but the universe can be cruel to the inhabitants within it. Otherwise, his efforts despite the fruitless as his reign will be short, and any plan in mind, gone, once the blade enters his back is at least worth some praise for his inevitable demise. Such as his reforms to the military, expansion into richer soil, and perhaps efforts to explore space. Though I doubt it's by modern methods, and more supernatural as aforementioned about their society. He has done well. But unfortunately, it won't be well enough to spare the blade."

"So, now it turns out, that ol' Mercer was a conman, who made it to the Rapture, just for another con. A seduced ancap resort, from where he could snatch lots of money... more likely in something with more liquidity than Rapture dollars with Ryan's ugly face, and then run off in case he is revealed, or as he planned, live there, cheating last pants off local capitalists. Then, some dude gets bitten by some weird sea slug... His hand gets fixed... damn... if I had such a pet, I'd have both my arms fleshy. Still, cybernetic arm is awesome, even if it's an earlier model, so I don't complain. Okay, so then, Mercer gives this superduper slug to a scientist, who then discovers ADAM. Some red goop, that can make your DNA and RNA go loco, and make ya' loco too as a side effect, and give ya' superpowers! Like, light a cigar or enemy arms on fire without a lighter! Or shoot a lightning if ya' wanna go Zeus.

What happened next was morally reprehensive. I mean, usin' lil' girls for ADAM production! By turnin' them into... I don't even wanna think about the process.

But then, a civil war came, in which, Mercer had defeated Ryan. Why not with a golf club, I don't know. But what's done is done. A man chooses, and slave obeys, and Mercer choose to create a new system, which is not an ancapistan in a pineapple under the sea.

And suddenly, he imposes some far more sensible laws! Can ya' belvie that?! Yeah, yeah, ancapistan is a rather low bar, but still... He just slapped a human face onto local brand of capitalism, makin' it far easier for a common worker to provide for his family. He also decided to make science in Rapture more moral and ethical. So the vile deeds of the past will never repeat. Did he repent or something at some point? Still, I wouldn't wanna live in Rapture. Don't get me wrong... his resort is nice and neat, but he runs this ship in a rather tight manner. I prefer far more personal freedom. Perhaps... it was motivated by what he seen under Ryan's regime?

And... I swear, that in the past, Rapture's history was different. According to what I heard. Do these changes have something to do with the multiverse tears machine in Suchong's lab?" -Overboss Liam Navarro

Sometimes people let age blind them. To think someone who is 12 years older than someone tell an individual that they are unfit to sit in a position that they are in.

I've seen leaders in their late thirties lead way better than a leader in their fifties.

Most Lowbloodian rulers start young and die old.

Some souls are destined for great things, age is just one of many factors in their story.

And I get it, he is experienced, Jozef has risked much for his people, and he has been rewarded for such acts getting where he is today. It gains my respect, but when such a thing is said it gets under my skin. And I'm not even young." -Luden

Oh, and now, he tries to expand his country to claim more of the hellscape full of freaky beasts, places where wolves are afraid to take shit at, and for that, he decided to do a very minor improvement to his miliary. Add airforce... Why minor, if it's a hell of an improvement? Oh, and add more anti-air of all sorts, if ya' at it! Use combined arms on the monsters, blow their freaky asses to smokin' pieces and serve them on BBQ! No need to grill, they will be already grilled and fried! Or... steamed? Hmmm... steamed monster ham... cooked in an aurora borealis at this part of Low Bloods at this time of year, localized entirely within a kitchen. Oh, got carried away!

As for the duel, I wasn't supposed to kill Shawn. That was not to the death, we just wanted to determine who is better suited for hardships of leadership over a semi-anarchic jolly bunch! And now, Shawn is where he belongs the best. As a field marshal.

Ok, so here we have an Overboss. Its a nice title. I also like your cool cybernetics. Makes me wish those Sitrimmians are a bit quicker with developing their human-compatible cybernetics. So what I'm reading here is that you are lazy but smart. Its something that reminds me a bit of myself when I was younger. I'm also reading here that you wanted to combine multiple aspects of all the faction cultures you were exposed to. Combining the best of multiple ideologies is always a good idea... if they are compatible at least. I like your technogardens idea, combining technology and nature is always pretty fascinating. You also seem pretty resourceful, those twelve labors you did seems... very dangerous and you still pulled through. You also seem to be adventurous. I'm also often up for an adventure. I only wish that there are a bit more details about your adventures then that they were "like Indiana Jones." The way you became leader is also pretty interesting. You were basically invited by the Illuminati and had to challenge the then current Overboss to a series of challenges, culminating into a duel. I'm surprised that your country still exist with a political system that seems very unstable. What also surprises me is that a free spirited person like you agrees to become the leader of a country, something that I imagine requires you to be very responsible.

From what I understand from a quick reading, your nation is a futuristic nation in which the UN works with interdimensional or interplanetary travel. And Natalie Liang would be the person responsible for coordinating these trips, something really remarkable. I am not in favor of humanity's involvement in travel to other places in the universe, as this can affect the natural balance, but I understand those who think differently. "Hello again everyone here! If I am going to be completely honest, I almost completely forgot about this place up until now! Oh, and not because of anything lacking on this end, just moreso that I have been quite busy doing a lot of other stuff as of late, stuff that I will not bore you with but it involves a lot of adventure and travel, and through places that are not even Hyrulean for that matter! Ah, but a certain event that happened VERY recently has brought back a little nostalgia for interaction with the wider Multiverse at large, and to scratch that itch, here I am!

So, we have a German here, correct? Friedrich-Wilhelm the Fifth, King of North Germany. So, if there is a North Germany, there must be a South Germany right, and I assume that you guys are not very happy that you are forced to be separated nationally from your Bavarian - and maybe even Austrian - brothers and sisters. Now, I have not really read into why you never unified in your history yet, I will probably do

"I suppose I have been "volunteered" to make a sharp return to this strange field of communication once more by a certain excitable spirit whom wants me to take over in her stead to review and share some opinions on someone here.

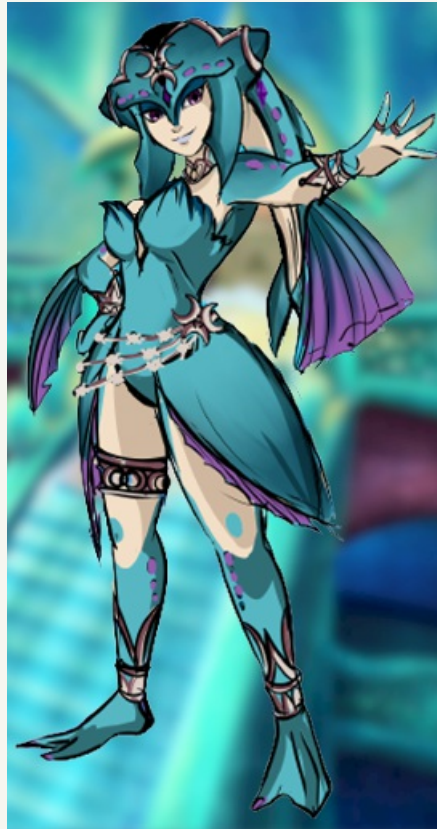

Do not mistake what I said above as an unwillingness to be here, for that is hardly the case. There is a level of enjoyment to be had in interacting with other peoples from many different walks of life, in situations that I can hardly relate to and call home places which I have none to little understanding of. And I will take this opportunity to separate myself from my current, and many thoughts, even if just temporarily... And with that over and done with, allow me to give my... Restrained greetings to you, Cala Azzakrat. The title of leadership in this instance seems to be the word "Cala" itself which I don't know the meaning of, yet I struggle to see how - forgive my biases - the wider civilisation of Caleshan can sanction a group like yours to exist as an entity. I hold little love for Raiders, Bandits and Barbarians and the plight the average person who can effectively fall under such a title are willing and able to impose on the common person. In which case, I wish forgiveness for my preconceived notions, and in an

For the first time I return to the Forums since... Well, a while ago and my first experience is being ninj'd... Classic!

Well, there's nothing that can be done about that, and I don't take it personally Free Katherin. However, this post of mine sure will be even longer now that I will have responses for three characters instead of two!

But, without further ado:

(Oh, and I'm sorry if I'm reviewing the wrong guy! I couldn't find anything or anyone else to talk about regarding your NationState, soooooooo...)

Zora Soldier of Hyrule, Ametu

"Alright, I am back! It seems my friend here managed to get to doing that thing I asked her to do after all!

Hmm, interesting... You know, Zelda pretty much said what I said about Azzakrat myself a while back, but not in the way I put it. And to be fair to her, she does not care as much about all the "martial" stuff like being good at fighting and all of that, which fair enough! After all, when you are pretty much one of, if not the only Hyrulean as of current who can go around casting magic here and there, I guess you do not need to worry about being too concerned with combat.

Oh, not to offend! I have heard about how well our esteemed Princess-Sovereign wields a bow and arrow. Allegedly better than the man himself, Link! But that is neither here nor there.

So, I am being dragged back here by the forces that be to talk about another person, that being this Seraph; a guy named Enlil Re'Um. Quite a mouthful if I do say so myself! So, let me get down some basic facts about the esteemed "Preacher" for the Free Katheni Council. His role currently is being some sort of guide for the anarchic lands of... Well, Free Kathen but before he was also a Major General and opted a revolutionary front before the seizure of the Governor's Palace and causing the collapse of Rigali. And honestly, I could just leave the summary right there because with some mention about being rewarded for his military service before turning his back upon the Empire he fought for there really is not much more to go off on, but I will try to be a little more... Well, detailed?

So, first of all, you went out of your way to get rid of an Empire to pave way for the formation of Free Kathen but here is the thing here... I really can not say if Rigali which came before your little civilisation was worth overthrowing or not because I really do not know how bad or good Rigali was in their affairs! But, I like the moxie of your new country, what with the whole "free-spirit" thing it has going on, though how exactly do you stop a civilisation like that from just collapsing in on itself because there really is not enough enforcement? That is a good question in my book, but moving on...

So, your service in the army pretty much set you up really well for your future revolutionary front, right? You practiced a lot in guerilla warfare which you somehow managed to use as an offensive doctrine against the enemies that be, which if I have read about it right, is guerilla tactics not supposed to be a defensive measure? Either or, I would like to know if you got personally involved in any of the fighting yourself. Leading is cool and all, but as a hot-blooded individual myself I always like learning about people's combat expertise! And... Do you mind if I leave it here? I do like what I have read about you but I honestly think I will continue to go on like a broken record if I drag this on for any longer. Wait, do not respond, I have made the decision myself.

So, this is a goodbye from me for now Entil. I like what I have seen about you, but at the same time I feel as if there is still a lot left that could be learnt about! So, good luck in your pursuits and I will see you some other time, huh?

Alright BN, I'd prefer for you to react to Ametu (because I just love her, yes I do! 😊) but at the same time, her autobiography thing is not completely... Well, completed yet so if it's too much to ask for, Zelda could be your second option.

Oh, and this goes without saying really. Any uninspired, needlessly short or generic posts will be /stillme'd... I'm not asking for an essay like I just did above, but a decent paragraph expressing your character's views on her is a-okay in my book!

"Mind you, I have not in fact forgotten, Comrade Catgirl Yurika too.. when the bourgeois delegations from Hyrule, including Avaxu had sent a snarky remark and sent a letter that I am an "Oppressive Princess Sovereign", and to add insult to injury, translate "Daschi Harunnynonen-schyu" to "Sovereign", in common bourgeois manner, and in common bourgeois talk coming from that bourgeois bizarre and curious-looking lizard Avaxu!

Sometimes I wonder what would be the newest weapon from their arsenal that the bourgeois and the imperialists will throw upon us. Haha! But now it seemed that the imperialists have run out of ideas and steam this time, and oh, run out of beauty and cuteness, and human common sense too! Because this time, the delegation from Hyrule can be, in nice words be described as a "menagerie", or a... a "bestiary"! What is this, a lizard! A blue lizard! No beauty! And no fashion at that! A blue lizard wearing a loincloth! I always knew that the bourgeois always stooped so low and we Communists are always ten steps ahead in beauty and cuteness against them but eh boy, I didn't know the bourgeois to stoop this low or scaly or what. [Referring to Avavu]

And now, a squid! An octopus? I knew that the Japanese or the South Korean fascists have released a new show called "Squid Game", or "Squid Girl" or whatever, but I didn't expect it to be like this! An actual squid? A squid on her head or a squid with a head? [Referring to Ametu] A girl? Plus I don't like her light blue lipstick! Give me a break....

(10 seconds later)

"Sigh" it had always been my impression that the Japanese imperialists are onto something when they made the legend of Zelda in Hyrule, but after "getting to know" at least.. on a very far.. far distance at arm's length... much.. much more comfortably and much further than an arm's length some of their most esteemed military leaders, including this "one" of the "Zoras" within a feudal clique, it seems that when the Japanese were discredited! Princess Zelda can be a beauty and truly a beauty at that and can be an able and capable leader by herself, at least by bourgeois-feudal or practical standards, and definitely not in a progressive or revolutionary manner, but even her practical finesse is limited by the "seals" that she appoints.

Sigh After all sparring with all the talk given to us by this "Honored Regent" here Avavu and "Honored Warrior" Amatu I think that such critiques can be safely dismissed as "bourgeois lizard" and "bourgeois squid" talk...

"So, here he is! A disgruntled general, who decided, that slaver empire gotta go to hell and the people should be free. What's not to like about this dude? He used his asymmetric warfare prowess to bring numerous enemies down and then used the experience to end the imperial reign like... forever. And now, he does everything to keep the folks free and jolly! What's not to love about this spiritualist dude? Besides, him and I share another similarity. We both got mechanical right arm. Mine is just techier... So the only strange thing about this affair is that we are not friends after all this. I say, let's fix this and proclaim, that we can and will establish friendly relations, goodwill and such on the grounds of ideological and other similarities! Offer is sent, we are open to relations, now, let's just wait for the response." - Overboss Liam Navarro

Two ninjas later...

"Princess Yuri started her "People's struggle against fascism and fake news" and banned a bunch of websites. Totalitarian communist dudes do love use the word "People's" whenever they impose some bullshit law, and so she does that. I assume the "People" in this context are her and her party, while the people have not been exactly asked if they want to ban this or not. Who doesn't agree with her is "fascist", no matter what ideology he actually follows. Even those, whom fascists hate with fury of thousand suns. Ya' can put a fistful of money and bet, that she is gonna call us, a bunch of freedom lovin' raider, "fascists" despite the fact, that fascists are one of the prime targets for our raids. Either way, she better not expect, that we gonna embrace her branch of communism. Like... ever. Cuz during the Edgar's regime we have been fed with folks pushin' us over and had enough of this shit. And we don't need any Maoism!

She votes in Russia favor, huh? Well, that's a shame, cuz we are on the side of Ukraine.

And why did this beauty pick Stalinism? Like... come on! There are far better and more viable variations of socialism and communism! These two were tried and had lots of flaws!" Overboss Liam Navarro

To the Sky Reavers.

It's good to see more Anarchic nations like us with a respect for individual liberty. I only hope that maybe we could come and work together to make both of our countries better. Alliances maybe?

Who knows.
