The Bug and Earth - Boa

Album: Boa/Cold

Genre: Trip Hop, Post-Rock, Dubstep, and Psychedelic Rock

Year: 2014

Democracy

Doesn't sound remotely trip hop to me, but eh, I guess maybe the more electronic part. Definitely hear the post-rock in the start because it gets all epic and bassy. Interesting collaboration, though...

Scientist - Dance Of The Vampires

“ Thurses wrote:

Dub is a genre of electronic music that grew out of reggae in the 1960s, and is commonly considered a subgenre, though it has developed to extend beyond the scope of reggae. Music in this genre consists predominantly of instrumental remixes of existing recordings and is achieved by significantly manipulating and reshaping the recordings, usually by removing the vocals from an existing music piece, and emphasizing the drum and bass parts (this stripped-down track is sometimes referred to as a 'riddim'). Other techniques include dynamically adding extensive echo, reverb, panoramic delay, and occasional dubbing of vocal or instrumental snippets from the original version or other works.

From Wikipedia, since it explains it better than I can. ☐
