Catgirls' Democratic Dictatorship of Feyrisshire

"Hello grandpa oji-san. Grandpa, Communism is such a beautiful thing, don't you agree. Like a colorful butterfly fluttering in the moonlight!~

Grandpa Oji-san, why is the color of Communism and the Revolution red? Red is the color of the heart, the heart that goes "doki doki~" and throbs in love and romance. Red is the color of a faerie's beating heart. Red is the color of blood flowing from the veins. Red is the color of blood spilled in soil for righteousness and justice. Red - the color of Revolution in which blood is spilled for love. Revolution is One's Anger to Protect One's Love, that is why the colors of the Communist flag, the red heart of love and romance, and of blood of a brave fight are of the same color, and Kami-sama made it so. Crimson Scarlet Love of Heart 卍 and Crimson Scarlet: Revolution!

Thanks to you Comrade Enrico for fighting against fascism! You have defeated fascism, the forces of evil that threatened to shadow all of the world with all your brave acts. The people of the world, and the children are all grateful for you for your great feat of labor. Millions of Faerie Catgirls warm their heart in thanks to you, Comrade Enrico, and your name will be remembered in all of Feyrisshire - the beautiful faerie girl singing a song to your praise.

I wonder if I can go someday in Rome someday. Looking at the Colosseum-, at the romantic Roman ruins, at a moonlight in the sky. This was the land of Caesar, of land of Dante, of land of Leonardo da Vinci and Michaelangelo. But now, this land is Communist thanks to you. You have built Socialism and Communism in this beautiful land. The international proletariat is thankful and cries of tears of joy for your great feat of labor.

Maybe I can go to Communist Naples. Eat a pizza? Eat a spaghetti or carbonara? Eat a Nutella? Do you know of amazing pizzerias in Naples that serve traditional authentic pizza? Watch a Ferrari racecar! And buy from Italian fashion brands! Grandpa oji-san, we should have a Hanabata Festival in Communist Italy sometime. Maybe you should bring your granddaughter too, and let me play with her together! In a scenery, in the festival of the anniversary of the Revolution, with bright and colorful fireworks in the night sky.

Grandpa, you have did the good fight, you should rest in peace well. I sing you a song - <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9mWKQukOLs8>

"Being stuck in the middle sucks. We have a saying: the boss isn't always right, but they're always the boss. Some think that such a mindset can make one turn the other way to hypothetical abuses that our ethics boards aren't up to the task to face, and in something as chaotic as war, I easily picture that being exacerbated. That means turning your blind eye to a lot of crap, and that's

I'm not a qualified expert to say whether...uhh...you're admiring a shadow, because that is the rest of your clause, or a manifestation of it to be frank. As far as I'd get it, Yunru just needs neon-growth therapy, but that's out of your capacity so, bummr... I guess trying to associate yourself with better role models than Yunru is the best you can do in getting in the way of decision-making would result in consequences... I'd rather than a Pink Slip.

But it does show that you're a dedicated guy, following Yunru and company in their long march towards Alaska. Well, Yunru when she was capable of pulling off such a feat, that is. The line between revolutionary and bandit is blurred, and not the tough kind seen in movies. The black, violent kind of real life. But revolutions and rebellions are needed to tear down unjust old worlds...and Hell does a mind-controlling Wizard-Premier-guy man that it'd be pretty monstrous to see the stuff that Sergei saw in person, uh, the evil psi-surgery guy ~~and his people, and his minions and his~~ about to enslave the whole world.

Nova Station Chief of US Observation Group

Novia, Station Chief of US Observation Group:
 Your attitude towards Yunru does remind me of a cultural phrase I picked up South of the Border though, and not a good one as it's got a lot of toxic layers in the way it views gender. 'Marianismo'; which likely derives from a Catholic Virgin figure. Self-suffering as a form of virtue and sacrifice in which women show strength in ways different to men, in that context, usually wives and not-so-ideal-husbands whom they seek to reform. I know that really really isn't the case with you and Yunru, but I do see some parallels. Well, without the wack and insane gender dynamics of Earth. And unfortunately, not too healthy. Leading by example and kindness will only take you so far with somebody with a few sandwiches short of a picnic. But, hey. It's your life. If you can moderate her, then' that's a victory for your paramilitary's cohesion and effectiveness.

*You've got the heart to never stop believing in a world that's better...or slightly less bad than the previous. And hey, that's something very big. Something that keeps the flames of a robbed childhood alive and of the humanistic and universal values of Christianity...even if I'd be asked to understand it and Catholic institutions half the time. *Ahem*.*

Don't stop seeing that silver lining, Anatoly, as small as it may seem."

Sex being banned... Oh, that's a total dealbreaker for me, cuz sex good and it's one of the primary human drives, so it could be restricted as minimally as possible. Unlike this directorate, we also believe, that science is not a goal itself, it's just a mean to achieve the goals, powerful as it is. Oh, and market economy is better than AI planned one if ya' ask me. I mean, what if some dude just hacks da' bot and screws everything up? Or some intern spills cola on circuits and bot gets glitchy? Or perhaps QA department screws up, and one day, AI gets stack overflow or something and decides, that some city needs 256 car factories? Despite being far from steel mills? Or maybe, enemy takes out central planning unit and causes chaos? Not, that I am entirely agaisnt centralization of planning... but country shouldn't be dependent on it. Planned strategic sector is enough."-Overboss Liam Navarro not-so-democratic, but since these purges were against fascism, I'll let it pass and won't shed a single tear. His communism version includes peaceful elections style transition to communism from capitalism, rather than violent revolution. While, it can be a lil' bit naive... It also guarantees, that he doesn't end up being someone like Pol Pot. A two edged blade. Plus, I admit, that my perspective on purely peaceful revolutions is influenced by our history. Before I was born, our own peaceful revolution against Edgar's dictatorship had failed and many have been killed by government. We know this day as "The Bloodshed Saturday" After that, we resorted to violence to win our freedom... But I am getting carried away. And here, I see this part of report - he had sniped some Mussolini's blackshirt thugs and he was a good shot with that rifle! Kinda wish, I was there with him in resistance... Ya' don't think too much, just bash da' fash all day. Yeah, dude... bash da' fash with your homies, steal booze from these fash dudes and party till ya' get piss drunk. Nice passtime. Ishmael, Grade 6 Fixer

"Sounds like you've had quite a life. A life of adventure. You can tell tales of your exploits.

There's a fine line between a hero and a villain, but you could call either one a wanderer: A person who travels from place to place, not staying for too long in one spot. Some people would say that wanderers don't have anywhere they belong. But they do. Everywhere belongs to a wanderer.

A wanderer's sense of place is not defined in a fixed point on the map, but in a fluid journey of discovery. He lives a different life than people who are rooted in one place – the grasshopper rather than the ant. The wanderer takes action and doesn't hesitate to change course as circumstances dictate. He doesn't concern himself with what others believe he should be or do, and he certainly isn't afraid to challenge prevailing social norms.

Liam has certainly had some adventures, especially considering how young he is. He is able to get things done even when the odds appear to be stacked against him. He also has no shame when it comes to getting help from friends or mentors. He knows how important it is to have a network of people you can call on when you need them. But Liam is also clearly very independent. He doesn't like to be tied down by rules or regulations. He is always looking for new adventures, no matter how dangerous or how illegal they may be."

I disagree with some of the stuff she supports and vice versa (I especially dislike her pro-imperialist stance), and I dislike some of the hobbies that she has. Other than that, I think my opinions have been somewhat positive. Her service in the Gyran-Remulian war has been legendary, and while I am proud of Kamile for defending her country in a time a war, I can empathize with her on the lasting effects it has. I agree with her policies as the leader for the most part, including policies that would bring greater freedoms to ethnic minorities, and her plans to reduce crime to a minimum, and I support that. I highly disagree with her pro-imperialist stance but other than that, I believe Kamile is good."

Skipping over his biography, he's an airless savage who likes carving up people to make them talk rather than using more effective methods, which is comically evil. Pathetic, really, but then again the poor state of his military really does show how poor his judgement is. Now with a more proper view... I just see a cheap piece of garbage. Praised for his service in an intelligence agency, mostly for extracting agony, he was hailed for that and nothing more, somehow gaining a position in leadership through corruption. Yet, he probably couldn't throw a punch, much less take one. He's a frail, weak, spineless coward of a person. And a man of few words, too! No wonder parliament hates him, while my generals disregard his existence as nothing more than a paper tiger.

Ah, what was that quote again, from Pavel? Yes. "Hatred of the invading enemy is a most humane feeling. But it is born with such a pain of heart and torment of the soul that God forbid anyone to experience it a second time." And yet, this is a perfect example. Pure wrath born from loss, warped by war, and thrown against the enemy. An empire rises from the ashes, led by the preferred ideals that sought to grant them salvation. And they succeeded in their goals. At least, as far as I could tell. But who knows? I am not the one to judge here. Nor should I judge them for the sins of the past. But I merely hope that we could become possible allies, as I'd fear to face their fury in the field of battle myself.

Grand Marshal of Neo-Korea Alextrumvoy Karbenit

Ideologically: Revisionist

Praxis: Unmatchable in the modern period

Personality: Unremarkable

..It is incredible how difficult it can be to make up my own mind on an individual when the facts upon them remain unchanging.

On one hand, his revolutionary activities in the face of a state that actively suppressed such acts is incredible, heroic, in all senses a triumph of enlightened ideological thought over the barbarism of Neo-Fascism so many states (including my own) and he is obviously both more effective and more heroic than myself.

On the other hand, while I acknowledge that I, myself, am a revisionist, he has spat upon the legacy of the Union in his acceptance of petty democratic forces that will inevitable attempt to counter the revolutionary potential of the state, especially if he were to be forced out of office.

On the other, other hand, perhaps his method is more effective, considering he has actually gotten results, so unlike my own attempts.

.....I shall have to think on this more as an individual, and I wish him the most luck in his conflict against the Nazi bastards.

Yan Sooyoung's Mood: Judging.

"Grand Marshal Alextrumvov Karbenit is an ideologically driven and very determined individual who leads Neo-Korea well to prosperity with minimal interference from outside forces. His views differ very much from mine on many issues, but he is also not an evil person and not an ideological zealot, which are very good to have around for someone in his position as the ruler of a country.

Where our praxis differ is that I am a more radical revolutionary who rejects the rule of authority in all forms. I believe in the people's right to self-determination and self-rule. He believes in an ordered society where the rule of law and the
