I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

On a random subject about what I posted earlier, the new Korn single...For some reason that song really gets on my nerves and it just sounds bland and, I dunno, sappy. It isn't even very metal and they throw in a random Dubstep moment...

At least the first album with the Dubstep artists seemed like they were trying something experimental, and I actually found myself liking it, but the new song really doesn't do anything for me, and it isn't even that bad of a song really.

Finally got all 12 Deerhoof albums done with!

Thought their entire discography was pretty solid, but I definitely have favorites. Which I'm pretty sure were mostly the ones people recommended to me.

Now I have the urge to listen through more of Unkle
