I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

I don't really know what my favorite movie song is. I don't listen to as many movie soundtracks as video game soundtracks....mostly because video game soundtracks from what I have observed are typically cooler and more original while movie soundtracks bore me a lot. Same deal with stories. Storytelling is getting better in video games then movies in my opinion. At least mainstream movies.
