Jail time to be determined by a judge for the mercenaries and contractor, and fines in accordance with the value of what is stolen.

Tax evasion.

Alt-history united Scandinavian nation stemming from the Kalmar Union. This nation is a parliamentary monarchy similar to Great Britain and Denmark in the modern day.

Not a crime if done as a political protest. If done to cover up an actual crime it adds +5 years hard labor to whatever crime was actually committed per criminal offense.

Petty Theft (value under one day's mean average wage) -- replace the item, plus pay owner cost of item, plus a usage fee of reasonable cost to lease the item, plus 1 day hard labor for every day stolen item is not returned to owner up to 1 year hard labor. Item to be garnished from wages if thief cannot repay immediately.

Theft (value over one day's mean average wage but under one month's mean average wage in value) -- replace the item, plus pay owner cost of item, plus an usage fee of reasonable cost to lease the item, plus 1-5 years hard labor, Item to be garnished from wages if thief cannot repay immediately.

Grand Theft (value over three years' mean average wages) -- 5 years hard labor, replace the item, plus pay owner cost of item, plus a usage free of reasonable cost to lease the item, plus waged garnished if thief cannot pay immediately.

These are the typical maximum sentences. Judge has discretion for lighter sentencing. In some cases up to 20 years hard labor may be given for recidivism. In all cases thief's assets can be liquidated to pay for restitution upon discretion of the judge.

Well, that depends a lot on what that site is asking for.

A) If the site only asks to report the person and let the police act, the police will identify that this person is not in the system and he, naturally, will explain to the police that this is a scammer trying to extort him.
 B) But if for some reason the site says that he is a criminal with a high level of dangerousness and someone decides to shoot or attack that person, his life has been put at risk.

In case A, when arrested, the scammer will spend at least 5 years in jail, and can reach 10.

In case B, when arrested, the scammer can face life imprisonment, or if the victim has been killed (either by the police or a civilian), he will be sentenced to the death penalty.

A hacker breaks into his nation's government website and publishes (either in the form of news or by uploading a supposedly official document) that a new law has passed and is in effect as of today.
 What's the penalty for this hacker?

The Federal Legislature only meets 2 months out of every two years, and the laws they pass are mainly to adjust laws that are already on the books. The person would become an urban legend. He would probably get a slap on the
