NS Cliches: Rebooted

by Aeritai » Thu Sep 03, 2020 8:18 am

Hello everyone and welcome to NS Cliches: Rebooted, in this thread we will be talking about the various cliches that appear in F7. Do note this is not a AN/AL game, it's just a fun little discussion to talk about all the various cliches that we have encountered in the F7 threads.

I don't know many cliches in F7 due to me going on and off the forum, but hopefully with this new nation that I have I hope to learn about cliches and try avoiding them in the near future.

Just call me Aeri

Well, they are somewhat common. I haven't seen enough of them to call them "common".

Space empires are pretty common, and I've seen quite a few alternate German histories too.

I'm not as active as I used to be (probably active once every 3-7 days) as I'm spending a lot more time on more important things. This has nothing to do with why I'm not as active, but I'm sad because a lot of ideas I thought of but never used in an F7 thread (e.g. the life simulator and make a multiverse) were used. Next time I think of something I should probably use it immediately instead of waiting a few months and having somebody else take it.

It's not a bad thing- Feyrisshire, for instance, does it incredibly well- but for some reason, when you combine a user who's left-leaning, maybe socdem or socialist, a desire to make a nation matching one's views, and a love of anime, three things that are quite common here, you generally get a communist or socialist nation with an aside or as a major component of their lore that "oh haha btw we have catgirls in our communist utopia". I just find it interesting that it pops up so often.

To clarify, Feyris is not necessarily in that category mentioned. I just used their nation as an example of a nation like that.

Here's a cliché that's more of a general thing but is very common on NS. Applying Modern sensibilities to an FT nation.

This especially applies to political-wank or power-wank FT nations. I personally have my doubts that a nation 3000 years into the future would even consider our modern problems to be, well, problems. A future sci-fi god-emperor would most likely not make Trans Rights or, for a less extreme example, the legality of crocs and socks one of their main priorities or political positions during a time period as distant from us as we are distant to the Babylonians. Of course, any society will have overarching issues that all societies have shared such as gender equality, the rights of those not apart of the ruling majority (racism, tribalism, specism in the possible future, whatever you wanna call it), but I find it kind of bland to see so many FT or even FFT nations still focusing on problems Modern humans face today when that is highly unlikely

This applies to Gods and/or Eldrich beings on NS as well. Because clearly some immortal war deity who wishes to bring about the destruction of the universe cares so much about the Communism vs Capitalism debate or the rights of homosexuals.

For my FT nation, the society is (supposed to be) at a level of advancement at which today's problems are irrelevant - everyone already agrees on the solution. But modern issues keep coming up in roleplay, so I can't completely ignore them.

That's not your fault then in my opinion, it just means you have to bring them up for the sake of RP, which is fine. I was talking more in terms of worldbuilding.

Of course, this is all imo, I don't know what the future will bring. Perhaps the Pineapple Pizza civil war will break out in 2673

Germany, space nations, space Germanys, Neko commies, psychotic dictatorships, politically isolated monarchies (to a lesser extent), What If Germany, What If Russia, haha meme, and...I'll sprinkle in a few Islamic nations. Not too cliché, but there's like 3 communist Muslim nations I can recall, a few dynastic monarchist Islamic nations (although like duh), and that's around it.

And mind you, a nation that does what they are well can still be cliché, and a nation that is cliché can still be a very well done nation, it's just that what they are is common.

Oh, and I gotta throw in monarchist Switzerlands. Too many.

Socialist or Social Democratic nations that are hyper left wing and also super peaceful unless if you disagree with them on a political opinion at which time they become demons bent on the destruction of whatever nation opposes them. I have seen so many nations like this.

This country does not follow my beliefs, but rather something I would find interesting.

Political Compass: -5.75, -4.87

Prorescia is a tourist friendly nation that has some of the most beautiful forests in the world. It controls a small part of current day Brazil about the size of French Guiana and is largely rural because of that with only 3 major cities, Santo Tablo, Pacifil, and Consanto Praia. The Government is Democratic and led by a Council who make most decisions. However, 5 democratically elected representatives can at any time call for a lack of faith vote which would impeach a current council member. The lack of faith vote is voted on by the populace which number in the thousands.

Yeah leaders who are too perfect seems unrealistic and that's coming from someone who's leader is perfect. I plan on changing that though by putting a criticism section on her factbook page the trouble is I need to come up with valid criticisms.

Nations where it's super obvious their leader is just them with Groucho glasses and a pseudonym [cough hack] playing out their power fantasy. Or, fantasy monsters that need to be exterminated post haste, do try to report them as soon as possible as they're quite dangerous, we'll take care of it while also stripping you of your rights to everything.

These three go hand in hand. I've never seen a communist nation here that actually is communist, it's always the transitional state before communism... and a pretty poor one at that, given how far they stray from Marx's ideology. I guess it's not that much of a surprise since us in the Anglophone world generally refer to those transitional states (e.g. Vietnam, Venezuela) as "communist" when they're really just aspirational.

Combine it with anime catgirls and you just get something where it's incredibly obvious they're not actual communists, they're just doing it so they're popular on the Internet. I was kinda shocked when, say, zalgo text here sold out communism for Woven girls but in hindsight it makes sense; if the communists here were really communists their nations would be radically different to how they actually are. I'm not entirely surprised; back when I was in the Accursed Farms discord server, I was the only one out of the whole server to have read the Communist Manifesto despite being the only one there not to be either socialist or communist. Now, I'm sure others have read it, but they didn't pipe up during that conversation where I dropped the 10 Commandments for Commie Commanders on them.

And for some reason if you disagree you're literally Hitler, only too stupid to find your own hands. And must be a man because no woman would be so stupid as to not be a leftist, because all women are exactly the same and have no subtlety or variation to them at all.

It's not super common anymore, but remember when there used to be like 50 million 'Germany but the Nazis won' nations out there?

Back in the days when you were able to RP as Nazis without people assuming those were your RL views cuz RL Nazis on NS were basically just summer trolls and attempted raids from places like Stormfront.
