I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

The other day I got the impression that Birdy was this shy, quiet person based off of her appearance alone, and to take care of my curiosity I watched an interview with her and she was a quiet, shy person...Apparently I'm learning to decipher peoples personalities off of their appearance...

That's what I exactly found out shortly after I fell in love with her music.....

Wait, were you the one that got me into her in the first place?
Someone in one of these threads sent Birdy my way once I think and I listened to her cover of Skinny Love (what was sent my way), thought it was decent, and many months later finally listened to her...

Birdy-Just A Game (The Hunger Games Soundtrack)

Nope. I only helped you getting into her again. I'd gladly receive half of your thanks though.
