5 years in prison for battery charges towards a government official — the president, that is.

Blowing up the sun, causing everyone to panic and the world to freeze over?

TEXAS - goodbye, everyone :)

That could lead to, at minimum, a charge of attempted premeditated (first degree) murder, which often has a sentence of around 25 years attached to it if found guilty, as well as treason, which also often is an offence punished with a life sentence if found guilty. And that is just if a person just committed those crimes, and made sure to not break any other Atrovanian laws.

Chances are, if a person just declared they were their own country, the government wouldn't bother to charge them with treason (as just a single person doing that often wouldn't be a serious attempt at secession), and they'd probably just be charged with not paying taxes, but if someone formed their own country and then used that as a justification to try and kill someone, the Atrovanian government would throw the book at them.

The Republic of Atrovania is not a WA member state. There is more detail in Atrovania's Information & Disclaimers page on this topic, and other areas.

In terms of technology, most Atrovanian technology is modern technology (MT), often enhanced with elements of Post-Modern Technology (PMT). Atrovania has the knowledge to use PMT to enhance MT, but lacks the capabilities to built and maintain things which are entirely PMT for the next (likely) several decades, at a minimum.

Depending on the type, and level of contamination of said waste, not necessarily a crime.

Although if the waste causes environmental contamination, to levels that are higher than found in nature or greater than the legally specified safe exposure limits, then the perpetrator gets to manually clean up the mess - without benefit of radiation shielding or PPE.

Vandalising a commemorative statue of a historically significant - but universally hated - figure from the BN's history.

20 years in prison? I dunno, this crime is kinda complicated.

Making everyone who supports a certain leader in your nation suddenly disappear, only for them to show up starving in a random cave months later?

TEXAS - goodbye, everyone :)

That would be mass kidnapping, which is a significantly more severe crime than serial kidnapping, which in turn is a significantly more severe crime than kidnapping, which will net you a life sentence in prison. Additionally, they are all starving, meaning they were not fed, which would fall under neglect. Because there are a few billion people in Biwolfia, and a good third of those each support of a different possible leader. 1.6 billion cases of neglect would net you another 16 billion years in prison.

That would fall under forced imprisonment, unlawful imprisonment, and murder (unless the victim was a spectre or spirit, in which case they were already dead, so the murder charge isn't applicable). The first two charges are a 5-year sentence, so if the victim is a spectre or spirit, 10 years of imprisonment. However, if the victim was previously alive, it would most likely be put down as a case of second degree murder, netting you 75 years in prison.

That would be assault and battery, which is a 5 year sentence.
