"Make me a compliment, I doubt you can do it."

"Big red butt you have. Nice!"

"My name is Budd-Ah, very creative. This is why I am called Budd-Ah. Make one about my intelligence not my physical appearance"

"Huh?"

"My head great, tell me that!"

"Huh? My head great, tell me that!"

Monkey 812 always found that other monkeys often gave short and uninspired and primitive answers - even if they were asked, how monkeys died 🙄 . She wanted the details, but did not get them.

So she wrote a great hero saga with a monkey changing the world by teaching people how to talk and write.

But... nobody read the book. Because monkeys talk in sign language and nobody except her had ever invented a way to write it down. And the story was to complicated for all - except one.

This monkey was willing to learn reading. Monkey 812 wrote the sequel as a revenge on the monkeys for not being interested

The pupil got angry on monkey 812 for writing the story this way. He lured monkey 812 in a cave system.

The sequel was missing an end, so it was written by the pupil: that monkey 812 had committed suicide litterally: "I commit suicide litterally. I come back, when you are smart enough to join the forces of wisdom in the mountains with the solved riddles in the jungle caves."

The pupil visited the cave system again, painted something on the wall, cried for his loss and was never seen again.
