The telecommunication makes its usual eldritch static noise as it is connecting into the forbidden depths of Zitragradian bureaucracy... and finally reaching the other end.

"Why me, again... making comments on foreign leaders I cannot care less about... for a regime that I never intended to serve."
[Braille typewriter noise can be heard very clearly]
"You must know that I hold apparent prejudice towards Muslims for their unreasonably restricted social norms. However, his political position would be fairly reasonable if we do not consider his faith. Please consider: in its truest core, Zitragrad has long been Orthodox... but we have grown out of that phase. The Sultan's decision to erase political divide by dissolving parties and elections is just a choice -- neither negative or positive right away until we see the results. Moreover, his 'nationalistic' control of the nation's economy would match our 'third way'-like stance. I suppose that we could commend him for that. Militarism? Fair quality, double-edged sword... and as usual a protector of human's rights, but also has his own definition of it. Overall, not a threat to us because of general goodwill between our nations. But I do fear that they will turn against us the moment they feel or know that we were, are, and have been in what they believe to be wrong."

PMT/Early FT - Decopunk. Zitragrad is a crowned republic in a planet somewhere else in the universe. The formerly wartorn nation keeps a facade of normalcy and order while enjoying the societal and cultural decadence that marks the new Roaring Twenties. The paranoid authoritarian government tries its best to uphold order in the face of uncertainty, while its people want nothing more than a breathing space. A deal that works, but maybe not in the long run. |

"I don't think, that deportations on race basis are exactly democratic. And this one naggin' issue won't let us fully embrace his philosophy, cause in good ol' Skyhooked we see all folks as equal. And what use in racism if ya' can just generate a synthetic body with skin of any color ya' wish for everyone? But yes, Casey has many points we agree with. I mean, representative democracy is just a fancy and overcomplicated way to snatch votes. A county picked a representative, and he is free to vote for anyone the hell he wants, despite whatever he promised. Yeah, angry folks can catch that lying weasel and beat him up, but the vote is cast, and now they gotta put up with the president they never asked for for another term. Direct democracy is better and awesomer.

Or transhumanism - an ability to augment one's body. This is a blessing for many disabled, who otherwise would suffer in their broken bodies. So, this is a love hate relationship." -Shawn Bjornson

"Ms. Chambers is clearly unfit to be the leader of any society. I cannot deny that she is very intelligent, but she uses said knowledge to oppress the people around her and ensure squalid living conditions for her own personal gain. I am not necessarily calling for the reestablishment of a state within her region - even my own country is admittedly not as organized as most nation-states - but it is clear that she is only dooming the people under her power, and ultimately herself."

It is undeniable that she has served as a capable ruler of her nation, but when one looks beyond that, she almost immediately becomes ethically questionable. From her bloody coming to power to her brutal response to any question of her rule, she has revealed a disturbing preference towards violence. However, she is also popular among many in her country, and multiple times has been proven a competent leader. In the end, I can safely conclude her to be a capable, but morally questionable woman."

I do say, your birth story reminds me of Queen Victoria's. Born in a carriage on the way to your local estate, only to have your mother die. It is quite tragic. However, despite your mother's death, your loyal father was still kind enough to teach you the principle that a Monarch's job is to rule over the people, and to not listen to what those mouth pieces in Parliament say. "Based on the reports I have received, Supreme Leader Oma is a noted liar that inexplicably achieved dominion over the island nation of New Zealand. Beyond that even the information that can be verified is confusing, but based on this research and Oma's poor attempts at censorship it would appear that he has brought famine, poverty, and injustice upon his people. Despite this, he doesn't seem evil so much as childish and disconnected from the reality of what he has done. Al Gore, in contrast, seems to mean well, but ultimately hasn't been able to improve matters there so far. Overall my opinion on Oma is negative.

I support his abolition of serfdom, though I think slavery should be outright abolished. I also support his efforts in colonizing North America.

My main issue comes with his religiosity. Despite not being threatened by a Protestant England, Patrick has become a warrior for Catholicism. The Void, infinite in it's blackness and harshness. Yet before him lay a wavering spark, a cross between a firefly and a sputtering candle. Out damned spot, out. Life is false and temporary.

The Spark grows, to the size of a torch, as if to spite him. Filling the void with faint echos of life. For a moment, the Patron pondered the Tantric and Tandavic mysteries of movement and song, as the tiny star twinkled faintly against the Entropy-That-Is.

Annoying, douse the fire.

Yet once more the light exploded, scattering embers across the empty, rendering it a star-spangled sky and the brightest of light being upon what he could make out was a blond haired figure, with song and seaform was he announced-greatest and brightest of the lights firstforth. With splendor and sterness he gazed upon the dark, upon him, with determination of a New Man made to wrath-yet tempered with compassion and determination not of this world.

Drown him in the oceans, return this to darkness.

From the first came three, old, middle, and new. Dark of hair they were, humble and earthy, for one who was raised in the unforgiving wilds of mother nature, yet still kingly in bearing. Were they looking on him in disgust, pity, or curiosity, who's to say. They were paelomodernist, they were the Old Men, the Old Order, they must perish!

After the three-in-one came the two, one man atop a Dragon. Their fire was different, yet still burning the same, for each was the kindler and bearer of the legacy. Before Konrad was the Hero on a Journey. Young and inexperienced, wild and wily, growing with experience and sharpened as he roared and railed against the entropy. Foolish, yet still he must be dispelled before the jaws of the beast Konrad embraced find their way to his head...

Lastly came a man, one hardly knew he was a king save for his ashy-white hair and kingly demeanor. He resembled the Dragonrider, so he must be the most modern descendant. A sneer no doubt would grace Konrad, how the mighty kings have fallen. Yet even now, in spite of all that the king had placed on himself-his personal mistakes, the duties of state, the pressure of living up to such prestigious forbears, he held firm and looked him straight in the eye...

"What a thing this speck is before me, this passing mite, this thief in the shadows. You are unworthy of the power you seized. You seek to break power into yourself, and power shall break you from within." - Aceus Elurion, King of Danceria.

The Avant-Gardist State of Patagonia ~ ~ ~ Gauchos and Mapuches, orgies and parties, avant-garde art, futurism, syndicalism, the New Man, general strikes, the glorification of violence, spiritual nationalism, esoteric occultism, CIA spooks, Spartanian homosexuality, public sodomy, and more

Triomphe du Surréalisme (1968)

- There are many things said about Patagonia but few actually know what goes on behind the Andes mountains. Tales of human depravation and man's inner darkest self run wild. A place where avant-garde culture flourish and the artist don't fear the censor. Where all live bold and free under the gaze of the Patron. Yet all dreams will come to an end soon...

"Pickett has always been a "friend" of the Confederacy even when there are differences between our cultures for us hedonists. Even as an accelerationist, I am saddened to hear that you deported the Negroes. As Charles Manson once said in "Helter Skelter": "We ought to make a race war between blacks and whites". A few negroes could make good futurists and yet your aspiration to achieve godhood is nothing sort of inspiring for us futurists. Yes, we shall celebrate the true virtue of this world unmolested by religion - human hubris."

Oswald's Mood: Totally Kaiser

"I am unable to empathize with this lunatic, fine it may have been bad for him that he was not accepted into his dream art school because of his weird artworks, that does not mean he has justification for his downward spiral into the deepest and darkest depths of sexual gratifications and moral depravity. But to think this man has an assemblage or followers behind him who, albeit unironically, worship him as a 'demigod?' then truly the future of the world is going to turn out much bleaker than we all had thought initially. So, I say, this deranged man, including his followers, is beyond from the grasp of social welfare. And a psychiatric hospital."

- His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the Imperial Fatherland, Oswald I., persecuting socialists with social welfare

QUOTE

"Ah, yet again another conservative moron. Fun! But whatever, Oswald is living in literally 1963, so being an ass of a being isn't unheard of in that era. Therefore, I'll just ignore his putrid stance in favor of advocating for an old, discriminatory order because it really is commonplace in the period he lives in. Going past that, I support his stance on the communists and communism overall... it is a despicable, disgusting ideology, it truly is. If I threw my morals aside, I would just have them shot on sight, but I don't do that because they're, well, human. Well, not human precisely since there are also Ikakami and Kitsunemimi communists too, but you get my point. His approach to combat communism by actually fixing the root problems that cause communists movements to be a thing is admirable, I think. Slightly positive opinion."
