When the Kovac came to Kronova, they brought with them their religion. They worshipped three gods: Het, god of wild places, nature, the hunt, and secrets; Draak, god of death, war, judgement, and knowledge; and Raeh, goddess of love, civilization, trade, and the sea.

The most popular of works are those by the Ultimate Supreme Leader himself. They have been described as a 'necessary works that need to be owned if you want to live.' These include 'A Journey,' 'Short Run To Oppression,' and 'The Quotations and Thoughts of Chairman Kokichi Oma.' The latter is a 'need-to-carry-everywhere' work, since if you are caught walking around public, and an officer asks you if you have one, and they find out you don't have one, you will be immediately denounced as a traitor and enemy of the Ultimate Supreme Leader, and be publicly humiliated and jailed/executed. So that's why everyone in the nation must have this if they are to learn about the ideological greatness of Kokichi Oma.

The Golden Path is a terrorist organization in the Nepali regions of the Supranational Union of Socialist Republics. They have been active against the Socialist authority since 19 August 2053 and were founded by Shailen Pantha, who was confirmed to be dead by the PLA on 14 January 2060. Today they are led by a woman named Babie Feba, who, if the reports are true, has an irreverence for religion but a soft spot for drug trafficking, child enslavement, and human rights abuse. Much of her success is thanks to a Wawakanise-American man named Saudis Ajay, who went on a killing spree from 14 November 2059-21 March 2060.

In order to identify Golden Path members, PLA officers are trained to spot individuals that don a light-blue uniform marked with a yellow Golden Path logo on the back, combat boots, and a yellow bandanna or armband. The uniform is the same for both males or females. Snipers will wear a yellow camo hat, while Defenders will wear a vest. If PLA officer spots anyone matching such descriptions they are ordered to shoot on site.
