If you want catchy, try this black pop metal.

You're the one that showed me Drottnar! Consider this song your repayment.

Absolutely brilliant progressive death metal. The violin is a nice touch, when it comes in.

I was curious to see if such a thing exists, so I searched for it and found out it not only does exist but works very nicely.

Music is music, videos are videos. I don't listen to music for the videos. If I like a video, that's only a bonus. If I judged black metal by videos I would be disappointed most of the time.

Pink Floyd is officially my 3rd band to hit 100 scrobbles for a single band, the others being Radiohead and Secret Chiefs 3.

Also, I've scrobbled 99 Pink Floyd songs this week alone. I've gone a bit nutty apparently. I feel like there has been a good amount of me exploring music this week in Pink Floyd alone, though overall I've had a good week of music.

Also, none of you care about that.

Health-In Heat

Geez, talk about short albums. One album is 28 minutes long and the other is 32 minutes. I've seen EP's longer then that. The weird part is the shorter one has 2 songs more then the longer one.

Time to listen to some noise rock mixed with electronica, and just some noise rock. Their Max Payne 3 soundtrack doesn't really fit in this realm, which is cool that the band evolves out of that.
