If you mean shooting a real gay person, it's just incitement to murder, so 8 years to life in labor camp. If the gay man is some puppet, character drawn on a shield etc. not a crime.

5 years in prison for animal abuse.

Statutory rape. (Like a 16 yr old "consenting" to something with an adult)

Technically, the age of consent in Inner Albania is 15.

However, if a person under the age of 15 "consents" to something with an adult, which counts as statutory rape, the offender gets 3 years in prison.

Interrupting the playing of the national anthem during a ceremony.

It's generally not illegal, but some states have restrictions based on religious codes, in addition to obvious nationwide content-based regulations.

If it's a member of the government that's being bullied, it ranges from 20 years to life in prison depending on who's being bullied and how. And if it's El Presidente it's a death sentence to the bully. Otherwise it's still illegal but nobody cares.

If they cause trouble or a public annoyance or some such administrative offence, the fine will be increased versus if they had not drunk. Otherwise no problem.

Depends on the per mille and if you have caused accidents, injured or even killed someone. Can be anything between a fine and imprisonment, to be partially replaced by corporal punishment at the request of the delinquent.
