Socialist Unity Party and Green Party from represented and Revolutionary Worker's Party from unrepresented sounds cool.

An alt-history South America where 7 Brazilian states and sections of Suriname, Venezuela and Guyana separate to form their own country after the Bolsonaro regime nearly burns down the Amazon.

If men were angels, no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither external nor internal controls on government would be necessary. In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and the next place, oblige it to control itself.

Premier Fukushima Sonoko

"I believe my colleague Ambassador Mizushima previously offered her opinion on Wizlandia's parties. She expressed interest in the Democratic Socialist faction of the Social Democrats, I believe? That does seem like her! A democratic transition to fully nationalizing all industry... as for me, having looked at all the options, I think that if I were Wizlandian, I would vote for the Social Democratic Party, specifically the New Democrats. I am cautious about—though not necessarily opposed to—market intervention outside of nationalizing critical needs-based services (health, for instance), but I am very interested in a robust safety net for Baizoans.

"Alternatively, the Justice Party also draws my attention. The focus on social justice, anti-discrimination, and improving representation reminds me of my own platform as Baizou's premier."

Rep. Meikawa Tomoko

"Which party would I vote for in Wizlandia, not Baizou? Huh, that's an interesting question! I've got to say, I do like the moxie of the Socialist Worker's Party—but I don't think I can go in on violent revolution with them. The world needs revolution, but probably not like that, unless the situation in Wizlandia is much more serious than it seems.

"This might seem like it comes out of left field—but I'll say the Green Party. They're ecosocialists, they promote gender rights, and they want to reorganize how democracy works in Wizlandia. Their vision is different from Baizou's Socialists, but every nation should cater the approach to their unique history and needs, so difference there can make sense. So that's the choice for Wizlandian-me!"

In addition to their support for a strong social safety net, their interest in gender equality and anti-racism are key to bringing justice to our modern world."

OOC: As you've responded to Baizou's parties before, may I ask for some elaboration? The two "conservative" parties of Baizou—the Lotus and the New—are each quite different from each other, virtually political rivals and opposites. I'm a little curious as to how you find yourself willing to consider both of them on the same level.

Lotus Conservative Party: Prides itself in advocating being dept-free. Promotes traditional institutions. Strong diplomacy.

New Conservative Party: Favoring hawkish policies. More Republican than the Lotus Conservative Party.

Progressive Conservative Party or the People's Party.

MMP (Mixed-member proportional representation) is an electoral system, in which voters have two votes. One of them is to elect an representative for their electoral district, using FPTP. The second vote is to elect a party. The seats in parliament (House of Commons of Anatoliyanskiy) are then distributed to reflect the result of the party vote and thus achieving proportional representation (PR).

"Always 'slow and steady,' eh, Miya? Ah, but that's just how you are! Hm, if I were one of Port Myreal's rum-swilling pirates... to be honest, it's a little hard to get a good read on the parties when all I have are their presumed ideologies, but with that said—the Anti-Capitalist Left. They seem like they have more anti-establishment nerve than the other parties. As a Baizoan Socialist, I appreciate that kind of revolutionary attitude!"
