Monkey 5149 got bored and decided to see how long he could last by not breathing. He lasted 5 minutes before he fell unconscious and collapsed. Unfortunately he was surrounded by a pit of those foam cube things. He was saved by a passerby, who proceed to send Monkey 5149 into the Sun for his stupidity.

Monkey 5148 became the first monkey on the Moon! Unfortunately, he forgot his space suit, and promptly exploded due to rapid decompression.

A heavily Touhou-inspired nation. I'd rather not use NS Stats if it can be avoided.

Monkey 5147

Was in the middle of nowhere when the bombs dropped, he was vaporized in a flash as one exploded right on top of him.

Monkey 5143 sacrificed themselves saving the jungle. Some say they're still with us, watching us from the stars.

In actuality, they're in hell.

People tend to assume that Entrance of the Gladiators by Julius Fučík is what that ever so famous circus clown theme is. And in a way, it is. Nobody would ever argue with you on this fact.

However, if you want to be an unlikable, pedantic jerk, the song actually known to be circus music would be a version composed for American woodwind bands (and later transcribed for fairground organs) titled Thunder and Blazes, published by Louis-Philippe Laurendeau.

Of course, this information is of absolutely no consequence to anyone.

Monkey 5138 wore a name tag that said "Monkey 9887", hoping he would be skipped because he was "already dead". Unfortunately, as Monkey 9887 he was mistaken for John Connor and needless to say, he has been terminated.

Putting a bottle of cointreau, a stolen passenger airliner and a frankly impressive stock of cyclotrimethylene trinitramine to good use, monkey #5,135 successfully reinvented the kamikaze.

Monkey 5132 was executed.

Monkey 5131 was the executioner. Monkey 5132's mother, who had attended the execution, blew up his house as revenge. And everything within 10km of his house, as she was an engineer specialising in nuclear physics and had taken the term "nuclear revenge" far too literally.
