1. He didn't intervene much, His Successor Markov Izmah did all the firebombing, He was also hesitant to invade Darenos but his advisers pressured him into doing it
2. The reason his AR was so high is because he was basically if Trump was actually good. He was brutally honest and basically insulted his way up to the conservative nomination, Sound familiar?
3. The another reason his AR was so high is because his opponents were relatively extreme in comparison, Loris was a Socialist that would have gotten rid of elections entirely if congress was more dumb, Alcon's ideas were outdated and seems out of touch with the people. Eston was actually pretty decent but the ZLP's Reputation has been tanished ever since Loris ruined everything, Or at least tried to. He was in the right position at the right time. Besides now that he's dead insulting him is comparable to insulting Dale Earnhardt Sr. Or Kobe Bryant, They're flawed but ya'know, you're insulting a dead guy

"Why do I get the feeling that I had a past experience with leaders that are somehow unable to provide information upon themselves? No matter. This Wormfodder Delivery Service is quite the mystery as there doesn't seem to be a solid description of what this stuff exactly is, and why it's somehow an item that people would be willing to spend their hard earn cash on. Though I have my doubts this entity here is a benevolent one and I believe the whole industry is some sort of villainous scheme that brainwashes people to buy its goods and transforms them into something truly horrid..Overall, my stance is a wary negative."

"Oh hello there, Charles. I get why you would believe that Survival of the fittest is perhaps a primitive concept in the eyes of your world. However, that is just how we function as a race here in Alkdorian Empire. We seek to make each other stronger by whatever necessary means we must take to ensure our society doesn't become weak and vulnerable. A nation of pathetic citizens to put it bluntly cannot last for long without collapsing or suffer the humiliation of being conquered by a stronger and more powerful country. Otherwise, Charles, your reign as the Emperor of Svenska-Britannia gets no complaints from me. As you have done well in bringing happiness to your people and have proven yourself worthy to them by taking the charge on the battlefield to show that the leader is not afraid to risk their own life to see a war to it's end alongside his men who fight and die proudly for his cause."

His Royal Highness, Viktor Von Stein, Prince of the Alkdorian Empire

BN that doesn't understand this thread isn't always about the national leader, do Viktor Von Stein please.

"The profile of this man reads less like a leadership profile and more of an amateurish boasting session. It is easy for one to say that the strongest should rule when one is born with such insane capabilities. This man, he does not wish to lead, choosing instead to scamper about and challenge others to 'sparring matches'. This man is a bully who has never truly had to struggle in life and knows little of himself and even less of the needs of his people. I cannot respect this man, for though he claims to hold views that may well mesh favorably with my own, he neither evinces a reason for possession of such views nor demonstrates any inclination to act on those ideas." -Cala

As for Granses, this wavecrasher is one that I would often not like too much. Its like a hit of miss with their people, I never know if I'll actually like them or not.

But Granses is one I do believe i might like, sure he's a man of business, but I don't fear a man with a clever mouth unless they truly wish to stand in my way, or perhaps if they stand behind me.

I hate those that profit of others in a scummy way.

Not that he does so.

If only that was the majority for many leaders and there just peace, and gambling to see who could win as the Champion of the Arena. That would make things a bit better, and keep me from accidentally finding myself in the middle of warfare or involved in the outbreak out with an artillery shell interrupting my match with a challenger. People just need to chill out, and play sports, not exactly bloodsports, but just going out and enjoying life, you know? Anyways, my stance is pretty positive with this lad. I wish him the best."*

Nevermind that though, I am pleased to make your acquaintance. Alright, let us see who you are, Prince.

Well, to start I would hate to get on your bad side, that is for sure! You seem to be extremely skilled in everything that you do physically! From what I have read, you are not only perhaps the strongest man in your world in terms of strength, but you also possess the ability to be subtle and silent, as you have served as an assassin numerous times... That is not even mentioning the 'Magic' that you possess.

Now, we know that magic, in the way it is perceived in literature and the like could, and never will exist, correct? You have much mental fortitude however, that is what I believe you mean, no? I would criticize your views and the such, your lack of remorse for those worse off due to your 'survival of the fittest' mentality, and your constant belief that you have to be better than everyone...

But, that would be a one way trip to God, I believe, so I will refrain from talking about that for any longer.

It was a... Pleasure? Meeting you. Best wishes for your future, sir von Stein..."

Alaska

The Tsardom of

Царство Аляски, or the Russian Empire lives on in it's old colony, Alaska after the conclusion of the Russian Revolution of 1917. Standing with it's allies against the Moscow Accord of Russia and it's alliance members, nevertheless world tensions dwindle and the people of Alaska grow ever more desensitised with the conservative status quo, and their insistence on clinging to a now redundant past.

"A Russian royal ruling Alaska? And a Romanov no less. Well, we're hardly off to good start with this one. Now, my general opinion of monarchies is hardly positive. They place power into the hands of a single individual for no reason other than accident of birth, and work to perpetuate social inequality for the benefit of the ruling class. In your case, Ms. Romanova, that would be the bourgeoisie, as demonstrated by your economic stance. Now, a constitutional monarchy is in a sense even worse, for you do not actually have any real function within the affairs of state other than standing around and soaking up public money to sustain your lifestyle. Social parasitism at its finest. In short, I don't really think that we'll get along."

Chokwe's ambitions are interesting, reminding me of my own desire to conquer Mechyrdia. Certainly admirable, seeking to bring down the empire of international finance.

But his philosophy is misguided. I've done my fair share of research into Marxism and its consequences, and they have been a disaster for the working class. The entirety of Marxism is a mere ressentiment, the antithesis of capitalism, yet formed in the same mold. The story of Marxism is a damned Greek tragedy: the working class cried out against capitalism, and their wish was granted in the most literal way possible. As we see in Mechyrdia, in any capitalist society, there are two classes: those who work and toil out of financial necessity, and those who have enough wealth that they don't need to resort to manual labor. The latter class, the businessman, is in the minds of capitalists the "good" faction, with the former class, the proletarian, being the "evil" faction. Marxism, meanwhile, does not dispose of this capitalist moral dipole, and thus it fails to unite the two factions, the two classes, into any greater whole. Rather, it merely switches the words "good" and "evil". Marx sought to refute capital's freedom to make profit, yet all that he did was replace it with labor's freedom to make profit.

I'm getting a bit too carried away here, so I'll just say this: I hope it is not too late for the people of the Socialist Congo to embrace the form of socialism that is right for their people, in the form of a higher service to their deities, state, or similar, instead of blindly following red-painted capitalism.

"Finally! A man who I don't immediately despise... wait, is that THE Jim Jones? Holy shit- he's the crazy dude who killed 900 Americans because the American Government was out to get them. Well... I guess you killed a lot more in your timeline.

Jesus, I don't even know where to start. He was a supporter of the good cause, I suppose that at least there his heart is in the right place. I know some may disagree with me on this, but I find his authoritarianism to make some sense. I mean, it's better to be a strong father figure and lead your realm to prosperity than to lead it to collapse and ruin. Though, I suppose that argument doesn't work due to the whole 500,000 dead thing. He did fight against racism, and his beliefs appear to be mostly legitimate. I can give them that much. And yes, I can agree, the United States kind of sucked. But his United States was even worse. I- I-

Ah, fuck this. I can't take it anymore. This man, dead as he might be, terrifies me. All of it. The delusions, the 'Free Love' bullshit, the breaking of family bonds, even that stupid smile of his gives me the creeps. Jones was insane, drugs or not. If this man was truly some form of God, then I can only hope that whoever up there is giving him a stern talking to. If not, then I have become afraid of my own humanity. If he can stoop that low then... fuck, turn it off. Turn off that damn recording, I don't want to hear it anymore. And make sure you throw away my weed."

AN: "Hey! Uhh, if you'll excuse my friend, he's a bit touchy right now for whatever reason.

Well, miss. I can't really say I support you or your regime. I may be a capitalist, but damn if the society you run isn't a truckload of shit. Though, I guess I can't blame you nor the society. I mean, sheesh, the war alone would dictate that something had to rise from the ruins and make sure people don't forget that murdering people is impolite. And eh, I suppose if I wanted someone in charge, it could be much worse than you. I mean, my hometown could be controlled by some fascist, or worse yet, a liberal! Haha, I'm just kidding. As for your love of war, I can safely say that it's unfortunate, but I see where you're coming from. War for both of us has become a way to survive, and frankly, I don't think you could even live with an alternative. I mean, no offense grandma, but you're 412 years old, and I am willing to bet you spent a majority of them in some kind of conflict. War is just a way of life for you as it was for me. But, you're efficient at what you do, and that I can respect.

Holy shit, 2.2 million? Plus potentially unconfirmed ones? Shit, if I was able to kill that many enemy combatants, I could have liberated North America and then some. How much do your services cost? I can pay in gold."

Regarding Ryan Carpenter:

"I can respect this man without reservation. He carries no illusions about what he is capable of, does what needs to be done in spite of his feelings on the subject, and comports himself in a way that would mesh very well with our own ways. My only concern is his ongoing belligerence in regards to this URoE which seems to feature prominently in his military career as a primary foe. Though I can sympathize with feelings of antipathy towards other groups for personal reasons, that should not preclude one from finding a common path forward. I do however admit to a somewhat narrow understanding of the context, so mayhap the option is not as plausible as I would expect." - Cala Granses Wavecrasher

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

Used NS stats: Population. That's it. Anything else not stated in the factbooks is not used.

"I fit it assuming he's calling me a bully when he's several miles away. And also thinking that he knows how my countrymen think better than I. Alkdorians are a people that strive to be strong and we strive to push the weak within our ranks to break their chains of being poisoned by their physical inefficiencies and find ways to utilize themselves to prevent from dishonoring the nation by becoming dependent on others. That doesn't always be winning brawling matches it can be also be from partaking in the economy, science branch, and intelligence gathering to enrich and secure the Empire's well-being. Nonetheless, I doubt he'll get that and I really don't care for what a foreigner tries to impose on a people that will just laugh at them. Otherwise, I give him credit for his work in developing technology to be sold and benefit his tribe. Which I do it find it weird, tribalism is still thing despite being an advanced society. It's probably a loose confederation that only unites when they as a whole are threaten. Overall, I'm neutral on the lad. If he wants to try one of his toy on me. I'll be down could be fun."

All this talk about pushing the physically disabled out of the way and taking it as some sort of a poison. Maybe he means it well, but I see it as nothing more than eugenics if he is phrasing it poorly. I know being too reliant on others can be a problem, but you seriously can't help someone out in their times of need? I will have to give him credit though, I am glad that he at least sees poor sportsmanship as something to be hated about, and yeah, that armed pacifism thing is not so bad alongside warmongering. A Vonstein that hates warmongering? Color me surprised, they can do something different after all! I am also sort of glad we don't get around these forums- err, universes, too often now. We found a place which treats us much better and you know what they say - you have to move home now and then. Anything to get away from the now-circus that is Forum 7. Anyway, I am neutral on them, though a little positive. Maybe. We will meet again!
