"Sarkar is an interesting man. He was born to a collapsing state, which I suppose pushed him to organize and aid the revolution his nation got swept up in. He even headed up a commune, which is an incredibly difficult task. He eventually became an influential scientific socialist - or, as I guess most places would call it, Marxist - theorist, which I can appreciate. I'm not entirely certain what biocommunist is, but unless it's some hideous distortion of socialist ideals, I can't imagine I'd find it too disagreeable. I'd say my first impression is positive, but unfortunately I can't gather as much about his beliefs as policies as I'd like to. Still, given what I'm reading, he seems like a fine leader, and I hope his nation prospers under him."

As for political prospects... Yes, establishing relations with Great Circle of Red Lake would be a nice step for us. Perhaps, we should let her know, that if she wants to spread Gothic culture elsewhere, we can host several festivals and exhibitions. After all, our people will definitely enjoy something new, coming to their towns. Plus, tourists will also love this! In terms of arts, we have similar goals. "Navarro huh. Let's take a closer look at you. Fair skin, with ginger hair. Ah, soulless, as I would expect of one leading such a chaotic nation. But I shouldn't let myself get sidetracked. you've got some cute enhancements on you, is the arms and eye are or do you have something else hidden. And look at that, a comfortable 6', almost 6'1", I wouldn't wanna meet this man in a dark alley, though he seems like the kind of guy to be drunk by the time it's night anyway, or at least drinking all the way through it, so I doubt that would be a real concern. His fighting style seems nice, and quite lethal, so I should be thankful for that. So, you don't like paperwork. Well your method seems a bit silly, I just force someone else to deal with it, or better destroy it if I can. If they wanted something they can be bothered to ask for it themselves. If you ever choose to visit, the drunkenness would be fine, but drugs are very, let's say, popular. Nor would the fact you're a queer, though it seems you might have easy enough of a time masking it given you shoot both ways, and aren't hypersexual, though given your society I don't know how far one needs to go to reach such a title. I'll be honest, I despise your values, and I bet your hate mine too. Thankfully this is we live in different lands, so there should be any conflicts. For now."

the extreme, a product of a system where a child can be born with a mantle of power wholly undeserved. The only thing about her that I can find even remotely respectable is the fact that she does not immediately try to kill those who oppose her, but even this is a fleeting thing before she starts to throw a tantrum if nobody gives her what she wants. If her people look upon her ascension to the throne with anything other than the deepest sense of foreboding and dread, I can only conclude that the citizens of that nation are insane. A person who acts with that sense of entitlement, given that much power, is a sure path to agonizing destruction." -General Achaedus

"As I beckon thee to find an answer, you remain silent. It is always a reality with you, no?"

Never, not a single second of my life have I thought I would have some semblance of agreement with a man who is radically different to me. Defending his nation from an impending doom, not once, but countless times is enough to merit respect, even from the most cruel and hateful. However, all of that was soiled the instant he refused to support his people, even if they were the aggressor in a reaction well in the bounds of justifiable, leaving them without a competent individual to take charge of them. That is cowardice. To simply leave a nation in disarray over a minute moral conflict is self-serving, and a product of decadent, degenerate individualism, that should have been quashed the instant you became leader.

Politics aside, the wish to infinitely expand the mind is honorable. That, I hope, will set you straight.

While some of his programs as the leader of Sherechia may have done good for the country, the mass corruption and economic conditions under his regime are not to be overshadowed, plus his responsibility for thousands of people, which is very bad. And it's hard to believe what life was like under this man. Yet I will confidently say that we share similar views on imperialism and nationalism, both of which I implore this man. Amalasuintha Siculo, princess of the Goths

Just not the type of man I'd trust further than I could throw him, no less, his thinness make me think he might actually go some I guess he is pretty adept at learning at least what his society is starting at 4 already done with one of their big tests, sound quite impressive even though I can't really say what that would translate to in our society I'd say the worst is what he believ

simply horrif
Well
maybe
not horrif
I've
seen
worse
here,
but he is on a much higher
scale
of leader
which
speak
that is another
issue.
He
seems to
have,
problem
with listen
to
author
On
the whole
i
cant
really
say
I'm a
fan
this
mania
freak.

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

Used NS stats: Population. That's it. Anything else not stated in the factbooks is not used.

"This man might be more loathsome than any other world leader I've seen. Joining the Axis Powers during WWII, sanctioning cannibalism of the people of the USSR, a horrific record on civil rights... it makes even his rabid anti-socialism and ultranationalism look tame. His imperialism, wartime policies, and human rights violations should be enough to make anyone think twice about allying with his nation, but unsurprisingly, the US seems unbothered by any of it. He's going to burn in Gehenna for a very long time, and I hope to the sun, moon, and stars that someone sends him there soon... if only for the sake of the people he's butchered and damned, and who he continues to butcher and damn."

Now let's see... propaganda and propaganda. More propaganda. While not impossible in this universe of infinite possibilities, I have to admit, that I have a hard time believing that the society that this... eeeeh... this S...Sej..Se- this tongue-twister of a man... could functionally exist, at all. Thousands of years of perpetual war with no serious repulsion to population, bottlenecks or economic output? Enemies that must be passive to not adapt to their expansionism? The logistical capacity to travel from their homeland... in another hemisphere entirely... to take out the most northernmost Eurasian power somehow not thought of in the contingency plans of the rival bands alliance?

*If I'd take this seriously I'd call this Sex guy a Fascist-enabling swine. "New folio to examine, and thankfully, this one is pronounceable: Grimehilde Rozzi. Eh, I tried.

Well, whatever reality you're from, it's surprising me. Your people had professionalized fields before academic institutes and formal auxiliary sciences were a thing...or maybe that's just humanities, isn't it? Maybe natural sciences were, eeeeeeeh, more widespread before. Well, that or your people use a different calendar and the 1500s are not the Gregorian ones. Ah, yeah, back to your, uh, background and political feats.

Hmmm, quite the philosopher-king, eh scientist-queen, uuuh, figuratively that is. You were elected and all, I mean to say. And I can see the trust people put in you, I suppose, with eh, the well, altruistic and feats with the 66th Battalion. It was your duty and all, but people like those feats and eat up the heroism, not that you weren't brave or well meaning. Just noting that it is a plus for voters, I'm guessing. What clicks with me though is your adaptation to sociability, something your role as a public servant kinda demands and which contrasts quite a bit with your quiet childhood. I like to think that I'm a people-person, I love talking and hanging out with others- can't live without it. But, go figure, an introvert gamers more trust than me! Uh, good on you I guess, for your own private accomplishments, for valuing self-determination and uh, for keeping your homeland pretty. Really digging on that love towards sampling biospheres."

"Nova of the Air Domain. Interesting... Most Interesting! The information relating to their upbringing, and more broadly that which refers to the nature of Anhu society as a whole, opens up a number of intriguing possibilities. Conventional human biology and psychology is indeed unsuited for long-term extraterrestrial habitation, and the solutions of the Air Domain are thorough. It is unfortunate that we lacked the time and resources to implement such a regime with the human population of Earth. If we had, perhaps the final war would have proven unnecessary. But there is no point dwelling on the past! Let us see what else is of note regarding this Nova."

Air Domain and the United States of America. Nova, and their civilisation more broadly, is perhaps the ideal when it comes social primates, or at least comes quite close. We would recommend that they work to implement this ideal with the human civilisations of their Earth. As they have noted, nuclear armaments and industrially engendered climate change pose serious threats to the long-term survivability of not only humanity, but the Earth's biosphere as a whole. Our own experience confirms this. It would be wise to intervene against these threats before they can escalate further. But in any case, you have succeeded in impressing us in a way few social apes could! Perhaps there is hope for your kind after all."

"Elyon and combine... We really should invest a bit into range improvement for cruise and ballistic missiles. Improve their propelling, so they would go faster and fierouser! So when some xeno decides, that we must be "Contained for our own good" AKA "Genocided and the survivors forces to live in fear of wild beasts and freakish self-imposed gods", we gonna blow these assholes outta space to the kingdom come! No, we don't hate xenos, in fact, we are willing to accept them into our fold if they want to. But these particular ones look hostile. Dude got lots of tactics to attack us with. But no matter how ya' engineer a virus, it can be killed! Economy can adapt, infiltrators can be caught, and we gonna use robots as auxiliaries in army, not replace it with them. I don't think, Elyon will approve us not runnin' around malnourished and with stone axes, so we better prepare for this threat if there are signs of it.

But if Elyon approved our technogarden motion... we'll be glad, that we won't have to fight. But if he tries to infiltrate or poison our people, he better beware, cuz we got a bunch of cruise missiles, carrying EMP warheads, with his name on them! And we don't give a shit! Either way, we are ready and we will protect the Earth and humanity and it's freedom from all and any threat! And for genocide and warcrimes, there shall be retribution! No matter how, EMP, or spill some cola on his circuits." -Overboss Liam Navarro
