I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

My brother and I were talking about movies on Facebook. He watched Hugo, then I talked about how I wanted to see it because I get to a point where I get bored seeing the same stuff over and over, so I need something I haven't seen. Then we just went off on a big chat about movies and how he was going to send me a list, and I talked about how I needed to see Ravenous, and that's where that song came from. Don't have any easy way to watch it, though.

Uh...not listening to anything really.
