It would classify as murder, due to the fact the alpha radiation would almost certainly enter their cells and turn their DNA into mush, turning their body into one big tumour which would almost certainly kill them in days. Also, as a particularly disgusting way of killing, harsh sentencing is likely.

If the murderer didn't own the slave, they would be charged normally with either Second Degree or First Degree Murder and can land between 7-30 years.
If the murderer owned the slave, they would be charged not only with murder, but along with Slavery and can land in jail for up to 50 years.

Would be charged as Second Degree Normally, though if First Degree, would retain a higher sentence than normal, between 15 to 50 years behind bars.

Being a lawyer and then committing fraud, driving people to take their lives, being involved with a drug lord and the murder of several people?

Murder is murder: 20 with parole --> life without parole

Edit: Swooped, the combination of those charges (conspiracy to distribute controlled substances, fraudulent financial activities under section 13a of the Financial Practices Act of 1999, conspiracy to commit murder in the first degree & coercion of a person(s) under their own free will to commit self-harm or suicide) carry a sentence of 2-10 years imprisonment and a fine of 45% of yearly earnings, 2-5 years imprisonment and a fine of up to 55% of yearly earnings, 15 years to life imprisonment and 10-40 years in prison respectively.

In a case of all 4 of these being committed by an individual they would likely just be given a life sentence with opportunity of parole given between 25 and 40 years.
