Depends. In metropoly unless permitted by court (or in other circumstances where civilian law does not apply), considered failure at duty, punishable with medium fines.

In some colonies perfectly fine because bush war lack of recognition of said breakaway state. If you're declaring separation for shits and giggles, don't expect us to care. However, using separation as an excuse for illegal activity (tax evasion, consumer fraud, murder, rape, unlicensed driving, etc.) we'll enforce Juansonian law on Juansonian soil. If a breakaway tries to interfere with Juansonian police or military in the area, expect counterinsurgency operations.

That alone would not be likely to be a crime in our country. It would depend on the crime one uses a flamethrower. We will arrest people with a sentence proportional to an associated crime as we pass several pieces of legislation regarding flamethrower background checks and mental health.

Depends on the situation. If its a degree to get a job in a office of a banana company or smth there would be no problem but the company will be notified and can legally fire them on the spot without giving any money. However, if it was used to be a mechanic on a plane or a surgeon that would be up to 30 years in prison.

While the right to bear arms (including and especially firearms) is protected by this country's constitution, discharging a firearm in a reckless manner without intent to cause injury is a misdemeanor punishable by 15 days in the county jail.

Presidential message: If you feel you MUST discharge a firearm into the air on New Years' or other holidays, PLEASE use blanks.

Crime: Smuggling an alcoholic beverage into church (or another religious building, if your country has no churches) and consuming it while the priest (or their equivalent) is delivering a sermon.

It would be aiding and abetting the crime of illegal immigration, so would probably like most other aiding and abetting charges give you 2/3rds of the punishment, so about 2 years in prison at most with a 6,000 ruble fine

Defamation of a member of the general public, depends on the severity- it can range from fines up to 10 years in prison. Defamation of the leader or her wife? Public execution.

MEXICAN EMPIRE | IMPERIO MEXICANO

Once the jewel of the Spanish Empire, Mexico now finds itself in desperation. After losing thousands of its sons in defense of the northern territories and ousting the president fifty different times, Mexico had enough. Following the foreign intervention, Mexico's restored Empire seeks vengeance on his enemies and intends to show the world that the eagle still has its claws! Iguaddad en la Justicia!

Set during the 1860s. Basically an alt-history Mexico where the 2nd Mexican Empire doesn't fall.
