"Oh, hello again! I must admit to some admiration of your work ethic at the very least good sir. You most assuredly put much effort into getting things done. I do have to note however that your oft-repeated commentary on our purported puppetry strikes me as a bit hypocritical. We all have our strings, attempting to pull us hither and yon, holding us down as much as they pick us up. It is how you respond to these strings that truly makes one a great person. Will you strain against those things that act against you, or will you allow those strings to dictate your actions as they are wont to do? Oft I see such conservatively oriented minds bent to following those external forces with astonishingly fanatical zeal. It is sufficient to make one wonder if there is some form of... defense mechanism involved. You seem very focused on maintaining the grip of tradition, sir! I cannot fault you for a great deal of this. After all, what is history if not a learning experience? It would seem however that you and I take vastly different lessons from history. 'Tis a shame." -KazRamael

"Sir Alastair sounds like a great King despite his troubles with alcoholism I don't think it is my place to criticize him for drinking too much. When I look at a leader I look at the way they rule their nation and how they treat their own people and with Sir Alastair allowing freedom of speech in his great nation. I can tell he is a great King that his trying his best for the nation he loves, I hope that Sir Alastair recovers from his coma and overcomes the challenges of alcoholism once he wakes up."- Aranta Ayduin Rowarin.

"Oswald is a fine soul. I find that he will grow to be a great leader, I doubt I will live long enough to see it due to Lowbloods convoluted timeline.

But I've seen many young ones take the crown and they all received a harshness with their rule and often time grew up to match that harshness of those that grew to dislike them.

I believe Oswald is bold enough to not be pushed around by those that think hold to the saying "The older the wiser.", Eh?

I am fond of his beliefs towards a few things more than less, but my veiiv towards him is a positive one.

"It's seems rather autocratic of the Prime Minister to bring upon such tremendous changes in his party in a short interval of time, and then amend its regulations to hold power indefinitely. I definitely do not agree with, nor endorse his autocratic and totalitarian tendencies. "
-HM King Christophe II

It is a theme that I am very certainly looking forward to, and something that I don't mind if it is done by almost everyone. Apart from that, His Majesty is an exceptional person in all other aspects, along with a nice family to boot. I wonder if Clarissa and I should adopt a child. Hmm, I was told that it has happened in other parallel worlds, but not for this one.

"Genetic mutations...nuclear related metamorphosis...now this is new. We've been trying tirelessly for so long to harness the power of atom, and this fellow has gone ahead and done so within his own body. Well I'm impressed to say the least...perhaps even a little frightened. Hell, I thought royals had long names but this is...something else. Not that I'm disparaging the name of course, it's very nice, just very, very, long. And good grief...a 100% metabolism rate? You can count me jealous on that one."

"Convallaria: A sprawling sun-soaked dreamscape silhouetted far beyond the ethereal horizons of austere morality and petty mediocrity. But behind the sterile flights of state-sanctioned-fancy lies a paradise lost...a land of milk, honey and sex turned rancid in the sun, as the harshly held colonial disciplines of a bygone era yield to the temptations of society's nighttime fragrances..."
