Likely imprisonment for a period of around 15 years or the state overlooking the 'disappearance' of that individual after meeting with the family of the individual whose grave that was.

Depending on what happens, if they die then they get the death sentence, if they survive, the severity of the injuries will affect your sentence.

They would be right. They are too cute. However they would be asked to stop if they do it too much, and if they don't stop they would be arrested and possibly fined.

Depends upon the principality. In some places, that's legal, such as in Michalek, where there are a lot of abandoned buildings due to the Delvian Civil War that still need to be condemned, bulldozed, and more. In other states, such as Celko, it's highly illegal and is considered looting, punishable by death.

Penalty for false accusations.

Distributist, pagan, history buff, civil libertarian, mostly republican, but willing to accept some monarchy as well being a big King Charles III stan. You've been warned. I'm also very skeptical and critical of Fourth Wave feminism. Delvian States is a confederal monarchy with autonomous principalities that often have their own laws. NS Policies aren't entirely reliable canon for that reason at least.

"Reflect, if you will, how you are to govern a people who think that they ought to be free and think that they are not. Your scheme yields no revenue. It yields nothing but discontent, disorder, and disobedience. And such is the state of America, that after wading up to your eyes in blood, you can only end just where you began....." - Edmund Burke

This is little known, but Disturbing the Dead is a serious crime in Merulla, considered non-bailable.

Robbing a grave can get you a sentence of 7 to 20 years, depending on how much you "disturbed" the dead person.

At that point I don't think we'd be able to enforce any laws so they get off free. Hypothetically if we could, the offender is hung drawn and quartered.

Depends on the locality and the "misdeeds" themselves. Littering typically carries fines, community service, or a combination of both. If said "misdeeds" have gone too far, a few weeks in gaol may be deemed appropriate by the judge. That's not to mention the civil lawsuits that could be potentially initiated against the defendant.

Rarely happens, as Inner Albania's prisons are much more humane than other prisons, but if an inmate kills another inmate, they're usually sent to solitary confinement for 14 days.
